Ok, I put the google ads on my site Monday, and I have a several questions about the google ads.

1. Are the page impressions and clicks only updated every so often? or are they always updated, and I need to clear my cache?
  2. A page impression is when a user clicks on the ads and executes them according to Google, so then what is a click?
  3. Why didn't I get any money from the first day I ran the ads and got 6 clicks?
  4. How much money does each click give you?
  5. Is there a way to fake the clicks? Proxy Server possibly? or is there a file saved onto your computer Google keeps track of?
  6. Can the ads be clicked by a person every day, or can they only be clicked once by that person?

    1. Just like the money earned for the day it takes a few hours to update.
    2. I thinks its when an ad is showed?
    3. the person that click on the is not accepting cookies from commison junction.
    4. varies
    5. not really, there are robots and stuff though.(mind you, you can get into some trouble.)
    6. a person can click on it all they want(most multiles are ignored.), but you can't click on your own spreegem2. A page impression is when a user clicks on the ads and executes them according to Google, so then what is a click?

Wrong. A page impression is when it's shown on your site, when visitor sees the ad. A click is when its clicked.

I only have $6.60 so far BTW why would I give you some? Unless you could create something where a user logs in after creating an account and then clicks the Google ads, and the thing monitors how many times that users clicks the ads. If you can make something like that for me I'll give you $10.00
