Happy 4th all my fellow yankees. Even if your not one, you can help us celebrate our greatness by lighting something on fire. Have fun, but not the extent that you'll lose a limb!

We don't spite you on your Independence Day... (if you're from Canada, that is, if you're from England, you obviously don't have one).

We don't have one as far as i'm aware.

'Twas also a joke.

Of course, other places apply. I figured the majority of people here were either American or Canadian, but I guess you're not either of the two.

For some reason the place that we go to to see fireworks only showed them yesterday (July 3rd) this year. Odd. Maybe because the 4th is a Sunday and people need to go to work on Monday.

Happy 4th of July! Unfortunatrly where I live (Connecticut) we don't have any firecrackers, or stuff that flies into the air and explodes . Only Sparklers, and fountains.

Just burn something. It's the same effect.

Spreegem, where do you live in CT? I live there too.

We went to my aunt and uncle's house the other night who live on a lake. Their neighbors bought the good fireworks, the ones illegal in CT and it was awesome.

You also live in CT? Well, I live i Ellington, it's a small town. We got our fireworks over in Enfield and in the Vernon/Manchester area. We never bother going out of state though I will once I get a car. A couple people on my street had firecrackers and stuff though. The main reason we never go out of state to get illegal fireworks is cause our neighbor to our right is an ass and would probably call the cops on us.

Firecracker + tomato can = 50 feet of air.

It's nice and sunny here.

Have a great 4th!

Well, I hope everyone has a happy 4th of July, I gave you all a present It's hard, but you should be able to get it.

<http://www.renegadeforums.com/viewtopic.php?t=11308>

OT: 0mg That's so wierd LOL Which WalMart do you like better, the South Windsor one, or the Manchester one? I highly suggest to not go to the Manchester one, the lines take 45 minutes to get through, and then last time we went we had to go through another line which took 10 minutes to do to get out of the door because the walmart people had to put an X on your receipt for no apparent reason, they didn't even check your bags compared to your receipt or anything to see if you were trying to steal anything which was probably the reason that was set up. It was so stupid .

Have you noticed all the people that check your reciept, they are old. Wal*Mart gives them the job to make them feel important.

What state do you live in mister illegal fireworks... well at least in Michigan anything that goes into the air or explodes is illegal. So we have fountains and sparklers and some other fun junk but I go to Ohio with my bro and buy M-80s

Same in here in Illinois, but I live close to Missouri, so I always go and buy fireworks there. I was with my parents once, and we saw this store selling illegal fireworks. My father asked him if the cops minded him running it, or ever tried to shut him down, and he replied; "No they don't mind. Some even come here and buy fireworks." Lol.

I doubt anyone's really going to care if you set off fireworks illegally as long as it doesn't hurt anyone. Me and some friends sat down in the middle of a neighbourhood street and started firing off bottle rockets, roman candles, Saturn Vs, and lots of other stuff that's quite illegal in my state. Some spent munition even landed on someone's roof after it exploded in mid-air, but no one gave us anything, even though neighbours came and watched and cars would wait for 5 minutes to watch the show. It was lots of fun.

Doitle - all the smoke from those fireworks didn't scare the mosquitoes away?

We had hoped so but... No dice... I think there were just too many of them and not enough fireworks. We were out in like a field type thing by railroad tracks so it had alot of space to spread.

lol also speaking of that engi. My dad hit a neighbor in the head with a firework once. lol... he was lighting one of those helicopters, and he though the little plastic on the bottom was supposed to be taken off, but thats the stand and makes sure it goes straight up. So he takes it off, lights it, the thing goes nutz for a second and shoots horizontal straight accross the street and pegs our neighbor. We were like Oh Shit! He just laughed though. No Coppers... lol

How do helicopters work? Do they have a small rocket motor on each side of a rotor blade, so it gets lit, and rockets go off and carry it up? I have something vaguely similar to that, it's a Black Cat Surface to Air Missile, its a little pot thing that has two rockets pointing opposite ways on a cylinder, they go off, it spins around incredibly fast, and then a huge rocket pointing down lights off, and the thing just shoots up into the air. These are bad for shooting in roads in a neighbourhood, because once it goes maybe 100 feet into the air, it doesn't explode, and a big cardboard thing comes falling back down. This is what we hit the neighbour's roof with. Then, like 4 of my friends were sitting real close to a fireworks that shoots a whole ton of mini-bottle rockets up in the air [it has 100 shots; each is about the size and shape of a crayon] where they discovered the thing behaves like a shrapnel bomb in the air, raining down tiny pieces of fireworks for a 20-yard radius or so.

Good times.
