Good... Its going fine so far. it seems to be a situational at the moment, they always start fine, but have a habit of running out of steam after the first few paragraphs. Good luck, I want to know what happens in that barn... I just wish I had the balls to post up some of my own work. Now that would be funny..

I have always wanted to go a little deeper into the Nod world.

What would posses someone to be a Nod trooper?

How did they come to rise to power?

Where did the Hierarchy develop, and what would someone of that time period have seen?

I have been here just about every day since the game came out. I have staying power, and 45 minute lunch breaks in an office. Don't worry about that.

M00trix was silly. This will be a rather serious novella, based on the cutscenes from Tiberian Sun, Firestorm, and the original C&C.

Kirby, wow. That's all I can say. I am literally watching your story. I don't see the words. I, of course, read them, but it's as if I'm staring through the words and watching the story. It's kind of scary to think that words could paint such a picture.

I am not one to want to read, at all. There are few things that I actually like to read and your story has gotten me sucked into it.

Try_leel'm confused...

When this story first started I thought it was set during the C&C time period, but now you're mentioning titans and I'm really confused...

And you have a right to be. I decided to follow the Tiberian Sun timeline, as it really is the pivotal time for Nod. The original C&C was limited in it's storyline. The reclamation of the temple site in Sarejevo was the real momentum forward, and Nod's gambit for World domination really started there. This storyline follows Slavik's return to power after his attempted execution, and Kane's return to the Brotherhood after the temple was destroyed by Ion cannon.

Basically, the hieght of power for the Brotherhood is about to come to fruition.

I keep a framework in my head of where I want this to end up, and I also keep in mind that I need to stay true to the storyline Westwood made up. I type it onto word on my breaks, and post it here. For the most part though, made up on the spot.

And spreegem, the mind behind Centurion is a part of the story line, so I won't be revealing that until the appropriate time.

I do appreciate everyone who reads, and thier feedback.

majikent has asked for, and received permission to use the work on his site, and it really is a better layout than these forums are. This story is intended to be a gift back to this community and fans of C&C, so I continue to post it here despite my feelings of late in regards to rampant mindless flaming of community mods.

I encourage exnyte.com's use, and the forums are brand new, and clean. No flames. (Yet) He even has a place where you can vote on the story.

Spreegem hit the nail on the head. Assassins typically, and traditionally keep a means of suicide on them to prevent being captured and tortured for information. This is especially true in Japanese culture. Given the super dedicated nature of Nod, and thier belief that Kane is messiah, this would also be true for their assasins.

And no, I don't advocate that approach. There is only one messiah, and Jesus doesn't want people killing at all, let alone themselves.

Sorry for the delay folks. Yesterday was meeting hell, and I was unable to do much. Welcome to Dilbertville.....

What does anime have to do with anything?

The reason it is on exnyte.com is because I asked him if I could put a version of it on there, that way people could read through it w/o having to search for the story posts at that time. Then, he decided to update it there exclusively. It was not my idea or choice to take it from the Renegade Forums, but I'll happily host it if that's what Kirby wants.

I don't know, I felt like voicing my opinion on anime, but it is somewhat related. The C&C story is on a anime site...which made no sense. I can understand that it's his choice, but it just doesn't make much sense to me.

Where on my site do you see anime?

It's just a personal site, with no specific content.

I went to the wrong site. That's why I saw anime...nevermind then. I have no issues with it being on your site, just the anime one...which it's not on.

I "know" why Kirby isn't posting on here anymore. I put know in quotation marks because I am not 100% sure if it's true, but what I was told has been backed up with what I've been seeing.

He's not banned, if that's what you heard. I don't know or "know" why he isn't around, but we'll have his story here when he comes back.
