Im currently re-creating Dantes Mod Exchange from scratch.

It should be done in the next few days, i already have it all setup it just needs to be skinned which one of my graphics artists will do.

Just to let you know this is all done with Dantes permission.

Will post here once ModX is back up again.

What was Dante's Mod Exchange? Pardon my ignorance, but I have no idea.

Dante's Mod Exchange was a model, mod, and skin exchanging website that Dante set up a while back (seems like a long time now). It was set up quite like a forum, where you just post your models, mods, *.tga's, maps, whatever, and other people can play around with them (at your consent).

Hooray for Madtone!

I only went to Dante's Mod Exchange a few times, but it was amazing, it was just awesome, I mainly just looked around at stuff, but it was pretty cool to see all the different things people made and there were so many things you could download off of there that people had made. I really hope this comes out soon, I would like to see how the new ModX will be.

No there is nothing left of the old ModX sadly.

Once ModX is up again im really depending on the old ModX goers to upload the files that they might have stored on their HD.

I Have quite a few things on my HD from the old ModX which i will be posting up, i hope you guys do too so we can once again have a great community Mod Exchange once again!

Madtone's Mod Exchange

ModX

Both would be good since it isn't Dante's anymore, and it's yours, call it Madtone's Mod Exchange

Renegade Mod Exchange It is for mainly Renegade sorts of stuff, so maybe that would be good. Community Mod Exchange sounds good.

Im not going to limit ModX to just Renegade, but all FPS games. Why keep a narrow spectrum of users when we can expand it out to more users in different communities.

Would bring in more downloads and talent!

"Community Mod Exchange" is great.

It should be open to all games, it would be easy to attract all the new modders FarCry still has, and then even HL2 modders.

Just go around and post about it on different gaming forums when it's done..

im alive, well, and still working on D6.

We have a lot of backend stuff going on with D6, and probably this weekend i will be posting some small informations on it.

As for what i am doing? Playing Star Wars Galaxies with stonerook and some of my other guildmates from Planetside, Coding stuff up with FarCry servers, Developing storyline and concept for Dead 6, working on my Photoshop skills, and doing some web contracting. (http://www.asoundwaveproduction.com)

It was actually quite an honor to find out that all of you guys liked ModX so much, and i am glad that madtone is picking this up with my full support.

It was a great idea, due to some coding fo-pa`s, ModX had to come down, then I got hacked by "he who shall remain unamed" and although unintentionlly deleting my site instead of my hosts site, I lost motivation to start from scratch again for the 3rd time.

You can usually find me browsing around on some forums, usually just reading.

Thanks to Dante and myself ModX (once offically opened) will already have a fair few downloads up and ready.

Just a little hint, so far 31 models are uploaded and thats only some of Dantes, i haven't uploaded my lot yet.

The downloads being uploaded are new and also old ones from the old ModX and even the very early 1st version of ModX AKA DMS (Dante's Mod Exchange)

Thought you guys would appreciate an update

I for one am looking forward to this site. I'm tired of seeing the same old skins and mod's. Since, I can't mod or skin myself (or I'm just to lazy to learn).

Im not going to give out the URL until its completed.

There has been a slight delay due to moving onto a bigger an more secure server, so just a lil' more time while thats all being sorted.
