Well yes the program made it out but what a second all renguard servers are empty! or have less then 10 players. Was renguard a failure I think so not because of the programers but becuae of the stupid community not being able to download a small application. You cant play a decent game of renegade anymore without cheaters while you are running renguard and you know that you are clean but while others run free and cheat. Server owners refuse to use the renguard system due to the fact of empty servers. Well i think that is bullshit and they all are fucktards the n00bstories servers are pretty much empty... is this a sign that renegade is now cooked to its prime? Or is there still a chance please someone prove me wrong because this is killing me.

FULL RenGuard servers might be a failure, however there are allot of servers that use it partly. Most of the time the players don't even notice the server is running some form of RenGuard, because only the people in the IRC-channel can see it. RenGuard is being used in allot of different ways on servers...modified SSC's, scripts, whatever. THEY have definately not failed at using it.

If it weren't for the bugs in the FDS, servers like The Pits would still be running full RG today and they would be filled most of the time. How do I know? Because they used to run full RG and THE SERVER WAS FULL.

Atleast RenGuard has given server owners a way to see who is definately NOT cheating. Stop being so damn negative about it already. IMO the amount of people that are using it could only increase in the future.

One of the servers I am hosting is almost full 24/7 (24 slots) with RenGuard enforced. It's not exactly a failure. Our community has accepted RenGuard and it runs just fine for me. I look forward to CP1.

Using RenGuard without requiring every player to use it is pretty much a waste of time... but the bigger problem is providers costs going down, now servers can be run by any idiot with a hundred bucks a month. There are more servers than players, and it's only natural that many players will choose the path of least resistance and play on non-RG servers.

However, there are several successful servers. Your job as a player is to insist on RenGuard on your favorite server. Also, look at the list I added at the top of the MOTD for RenGuard. It will list the top 5 WOL and/or GSA servers with RenGuard'ed players in them so you know where the action is. Make you own personal effort to try out a different server if your favorite refuses to RenGuard themselves. There are many, many server communities out there where you can get a good game in, and playing without cheaters, like back in the good old days, is a great thing.

Even though it's only 8 player Ohnouser is a full Renguard server and it's always full during peak times of the day. We have gained new players by educating the community about Renguard and have helped people download and set it up. There is no way its a failure, If Renguard wasn't developed when it was. This community may have possibly been dead by now or it numbers would definitely be dwindling down! I have talked to several players who have returned to this community because of the presence of Renguard! Renguard A Failure?...I Think Not!

I must say that from a moderator's point of view, moderating RenGuard servers is a lot easier than non-RenGuard servers, purely because of it! You know that no one is cheating, so you only have to worry about walljumpers/thieves etc.

I must say, RenGuard is technically a failure because of the programmers. I can honestly say that a huge chunk of server owners/players vowed never to use RenGuard again after the botched launch it was. Also, I can think of 3 servers off the top of my head that don't run RenGuard because of SSC problems. To be blunt, both BHS SSC's are junk, and I can honestly say that the RenEvo SSC isn't much better. But hopefully many of those owners will be running RenGuard when BRenBot 136 comes out.

I actually like the half renguard server better. If you're a mod, you still get to have some fun, and if anyone is suspected they can just be forced to run it.

RenGuard saves my ass nearly everyday. I love it.

Thats true, and also, RenGuard is not a failure, it works doesnt it, its the the lack of people that dont feel like downloading it that is a failure.

I think the main problem renguard had was the rocky start with crashes/not detecting cheats etc. But the current version is much more stable.

But the question here is the amount of larger servers running proper renguard. ohnouser and egg's c&r server are just 8 players big. For c&r that's great but I get extremely bored in 8 player "aow"s. Renegade multiplayer was designed for 7 players on each team at the least. To me an 8 player running a full all out war with basekill is about as fun as getting hit over the head with a hammer.

I notice a lot of you are saying "renguard a failure? no way!" but haven't really provided much if any evidence to that. I just checked the top 5 listings on renguard and, fair enough - there're a couple wol servers with decent amounts of players.

Quote:Top 5 Servers for GameSpy and Westwood Online

WOL

The Pits (renmaps.com) 20/40

[RG]www.WarriorNation.net [... 17/28

[RG]FANMAPS.NET FanMaps 11/32

[RG]FANMAPS.NET Mission Maps 11/20

[DS] Dark Angels - AOW 9/32

But how many of those 5 are running full renguard (meaning, without renguard you can't join)? I know the pits doesn't, nor dark angels. I don't like fanmaps.net, much less mission maps. Warriornation wasn't even listed on wol and the rest of them are mediocre sized at best because there won't be any more than 9 players in them.

when was the last time you played in a large server running proper renguard? Ages ago, probably. most of us don't double click the renegade icon to wait for that "one in a blue moon" game, we just join any server with enough players in it. There have been a good few on a noobstories serv but renguard has been out since april and a few games in 4 months doesn't really cut it. and you could be waiting, what...10 minutes for someone to join you? the chance of a 2 player game going large is little to none. Sorry but most of the community doesn't have the patience or the will to bother doing that just so they can guarantee a 'cheat free' game, and I think it's something we'll have to live up to for good.

Only reason I play C&C Renegade is because of Renguard. I'm an old player back when it was just a demo.

I was turned off by it on 2003 when it started to get really crazy with cheaters on servers and the server admin couldn't even do crap about it.

Med tanks blowing up in one hit .

God mode where you can go to the enemy's base , blow it up and the defenses wouldn't even shoot you.

Big heads

Using the sniper gun to kill ordered vehicles in one shot wouldn't even get on the airstrip in time.

Only seeing explosions but no vehicles.

Pistols killing med tanks.

Aimbots

exploits

Killing black hands while they stand.

Cheaters crashing the servers.

This was on every server so I decided to quit then came back this year because I heard they made a new anti software cheat for C&C Renegade.

I only play on RG servers now thanks to Renguard any other server without Renguard is a cheat server.

RenGuard is not a failure, it stops cheating and does its job. Yes a lot of servers have gone empty since Renguard came out, BUT the way i look at it is this....

If you have nothing to hide it shouldn't be a problem. So anyone who says "Im not gonna play on that server because its Renguard" must have something to hide or are just a plain jackass.

Terrorism is just a word, so is terrorists. It has a very broad meaning that can apply to a number of situations, just because someone says "terrorist" does not mean it has anything to do with Sept 11 and the like. :rolleyes:

By terrorism I meant the basic premise of someone using violence or threats of violence to ensure their desired outcome. If someone says "free all the Iraqi hostages or we will behead this prisoner", that's terrorism. If someone says "let me cheat in your server or I will crash it", that is also terrorism. Other server owners pay money for their servers too. It's just the principle of it. No cheaters, period. By telling people that you'd rather have a cheater than DDoSing a site, you're letting cheaters hold all the cards. They know that you don't want the server down, so they'll throw it in your face. They may just come out and say, "don't kick me and I won't crash your server."

It happened one time at UGIN server 4. Some guy promised that he would crash the server if he was kicked. He was eventually banned for cheating, and crashed the server. I chose not to let him to push me around. There's no reason to let people openly cheat in fear your server is going down. Your server probably will be crashed, but you'll at least know that you didn't let him push you around. I took a stand and I'd do it again.
