Why must people making mods make fun of other mods? Why must programmers be more angry than that guy I threw a cheese block at? How come they can't all be nice happy people? Reborn and RenAlert mods are great, but the constant fighting between them is annoying. Why do the programmers insist on making fun of each other? It would be a lot better if there was a multi mod that you could go and play all of the games at once... GET OUT OF THAT FLAMER! WAIT! INC HEAVY TANK! AHHH! MAD TANK!!! MAMOTH MK II. That would be so awesome, but since all programmers must hate each other, it appears that good ideas make for good flame wars.

Here's an idea, why don't you go back in time around two and a half years ago and watch what Reborn said and did to this community as a whole, then come back here and find out why most people hate it.

Or just ask someone for the rendition of what happened, because you're obviously ignorant and that isn't going to "help" the situation you decry so much.

I'm a n00b u... well... i can't talk much... tell me... no really... only got online in this a a month ago, tell me, and i'll decide for myself if it is fair or not. I understand, however, that you are seen as a fairly arrogant person ACK. Actually, I base this on what Laeubi said in his forum.

My opinions goes and changes.

Why can't all people live in peace and harmony?
That's a very old problem.

People hardly forgive...
People hardly want to accept people that are different/have different opinions and so on.

Its sad... but thats the way the world goes. sadly!

By the way ACK i would like a summary on what happened. It'll save me the time, and I think asking you would be best.

coughevilcough

I don't really know the story well enough to explain it, but I can see that most likely nothing good can come from this.
