I have a chatroom on my site that was JACKED! It's on gamesurge, does anyone know another good place? Please, if you say n00bstories, tell me how to register with them.

I know my website related topics are old.

You want to know the STORY? okay... sure:

I was making my clan site (the small, junky one) and my friend goes on and says: "hey, you can register this for a Authserv"

I said: "later on"

Then he goes and does it anyways, making me subject to his KICKS for no reason, and now I can't even kick him. Worse yer, he tells me to go ONTO IT AND THEN KICKS ME!

I don't wanna seem like a uncle fucker, so can someone tell me where to put this so he can't bother me?

Thanks... lol...

Oh, and if there is a way to go and host this off of my computer along with my website, tell me!

/cs register #channelname password Description

^^ Register on n00bstories IRC.

It's that easy to register your own channel. And if you need any help, our friend IRCops will help you out if you join the #help channel.

I never got what's so important with needing a description. It's not the topic, so what relevance does it have?

Incognitol never got what's so important with needing a description. It's not the topic, so what relevance does it have?

It displays when you use the /cs info #channel command, so if anyone would like to know what the purpose of a channel is, they just check that. Though noone ever cares enough to put a real description in there... Also the /cs info #channel command is rarely used.

And this probably goes for most IRC networks, because I haven't seen one with proper descriptions for every channel yet.

Yeah, but I still don't get why it's mandatory. I mean, topics for a channel aren't even mandatory. I think the more logical thing would be:

/cs register #channel password Topic
