I have been recently hit with some bills that beed to be taken care of, and I was getting rid of the things that I could possibly get the most for. So I am selling my computer. Here it is:

Price: $418.50 (I will pay shipping)

Processor: Intel Celeron, 2.5ghz
Mother Board: Emachines T2542, holds up to 2gb ddr pc3300, 4 PCI slots, no agp
RAM: 768mb ddr
Hard Drive: 2, 40gb = 80gb
Integrated GFX Card
CD-RW Drive
6 USB 2.0 ports
Ethernet Card (Highspeed internet ready)
56k modem card
Case Color: Gray and Black

Case is in perfect condition. Not a scrath on her. All screws are there. Its a nice size, not to heavy. Nothing borken, all usb ports intact. Everything is in great condition. I will add a picture later on.

Please feel free to contact me at loghome13@yahoo.com to talk to me about it. I will e-mail you back. Plus please post your responses here.

At first it seemed overpriced but u.s. dollars are a lot more than sterling. anyway, would you a)consider selling individual parts?

b)have a paypal account?

c) does the motherboard have an agp slot? i am looking for a motherboard just now but from the sounds of it yours will be a bit pricey.

That's a really bad price. You should make it no more than $200, it's not worth anymore than that. Hell, I payed $500 for my computer and it's way faster than what you're selling. Plus, integrated graphic cards are worthless, and the rest of the parts don't even add up to $200.
