He's a dumbass, that's what's up with his signature. He decided to deface the image of our President. I love how the lack of respect is dominant in America.

Yes, "official" it may be, but it's still privately owned, and everybody knows that. EA won't take action against them because they have nothing to do with these forums. This site could be pink and have panda bears on it, and they wouldn't care about it or even bother trying to do anything about it.

All I have to say is that g00ns sound like ASSHOLES. Everyone deserves the right to technology. Not one person doesn't. The Internet, cell phones, and technology in general should be made to anyone who wants it.

I wonder if they realize that they themselves are a part of the very thing they try to destroy

Was about to post the same thing. When people are engulfed by something, they usually don't see it.

You can't be serious... there's a plethora of online hacking groups out there. What makes you think this one is responsible?

These guys are mental, and they don't even have good enough English to prove they aren't as ignorant as they sound. Those "owned" recordings don't make sense at all and are dumb, and the emails are pathetic. They can't even defend themselves from the emails.

NeoX, if I catch you quoting someone post again, you'll be banned for a week. If you're not adding anything to the conversation then don't bother to post.

If he had a question mark at the end of the URL, it would make sense. Otherwise, it's easy to find that a big mistake.

If you even read what I said, you'd notice that not having a question mark next to the URL can easily set people off.
