i dunno, I just think people shouldn't use PHP Nuke, I mean it's so simple, what ever happened to plain HTML sites with downloads links? and links to forums?

I just think people should use HTML and PHP for their sites that they make. I bought the template, then just edited it to death.

here is some advise....make your own template, never buy one, bought ones suck ass, or just get a free one and dismantle it until there is nothing but the format of the site, then rebuild to you specifications. Here is an old site of mine I made about a half year ago. i still gave credit to the people who made the template, but i raped the hell out of it. I even changed it up a bit when you go into the clan section(although it wasnt hard to do) HTML is very primitive and easy to do.

If you buy a template, it shouldn't be one of those "made in 10 minutes" templates. Get an actual design company to make you one if you're going to invest money into the layout.
