i love harvy walking on hourglass.. get into the AGT place c4 and start shooting but die
i have never yet blown the AGT
but i deal some good damage btw it will be impossible to get 20 chem wars behind a harvy and into the GDI AGT without 1 of the 20 GDI team members spotting you and killing you.. let alone the splash damage form the AGT's missiles when 1 of the HUGE lagging group will be in view

It's actually possible, however highly unlikely to get into the weap or ref too. So 20 chems could level the base in like 2 min.

That would be the divine ownage.

It will only take 3 Chem warriors to take down 1 building. Therefore, if at least 15 survive, it is possible for a team of 15 to level an entire base. Possible, but highly unlikely unless there is only one person on GDI, and that person happens to be AFK.

The common mistake with "it's" is one of my biggest pet-peeves. The difference between "it's" and "its" is very big, and it actually can mis-guide the reader a little or confuse them and cause them to re-read the whole sentence. This mistake is serious. Please take it seriously and stop considering all people who correct you "OMG GARMMER NAZEES!!11".

just a tid-bit of information here,

its= possessive form of the pronoun "it".
it's= contraction of the words "it is".

Two completely different words. It has nothing to do with grammar, and everything to do with using the correct word where it is supposed to be used.

You wouldn't say go left, have someone drive over a cliff, then make an inference that it doesn't matter that you mean right. Two different words used for two different meanings.

My only real problem with English is that I use the comma in incorrect areas. It's a bad habit that used to be worse... I'm working on it.

I'm not even talking about grammar anyways. Using "it's" incorrectly can cause a sentence to be harder to read, where commas don't hamper it as badly.

Also keep in mind that everything else doesn't really bother me. It's "it's" that I keep arguing about.

Meaning, stop fucking abusing this language, or get the hell out.

1. In the first sentence, the question mark comes before the closing quotation mark.
2. "A vocabulary" is not correct. Vocabulary is a plural word. There is no singular form of it.
3. Period instead of comma after "America."
4. Comma before quotation mark after "you."
5. Comma after "like," before, "omg..."
6. Period after language, before quotation mark.

Quote:Quote:B. I already know two languages and i'm working on my third.

And your point is...? That doesn't have anything to do with English.

Well you did tell me to learn "A DIFFERENT FUCKING LANGUAGE."

Quote:

"IF YOU CAN'T USE ENGLISH CORRECTLY, LEARN A DIFFERENT FUCKING LANGUAGE".

America as a whole doesn't make more mistakes than any other country. That's a generalization with little or no evidence.

There are some differences in American English and UK English. Emphasize (ise) is one of them.

America: Color, Center

UK: Colour, Centre

There are more, but I can't think of them off the top of my head.

SpoonyJeffLee67Emphasize is spelled with a "z", not with an "s" moron.
Isn't there an English spelling and an American spelling? I might be wrong.

Yes, but considering ACK is an American his spelling of the word emphasize is incorrect. So therefore, even if the UK English spelling is with an "s" he would still be wrong. And that's what this thread is all about isn't it? Finding out who is wrong and flaming them into docility because that is what the internet is all about, right?

or perhaps some other.

It's with a z or s, both are correct. Nice try Jeff, but no insult award.

Aircraftkiller! I'm not a grammar Nazi either. Comparing the occasional correction of your writing to the god damned National Socialist party is wrong on so many levels.

But then again, we can't all be idiot Nazis like you, because some of us take pride in being literate...

There is a difference between God and a god (like the way Aircraftkiller used it). He's in the right by using the lower case "g".

Fun fact that has no real relevance: Punctuation goes outside of quotation marks unless these quotation marks are actually quoting someone, so nobody go jump on Javafx, now.

And to get this train wreck back on track:

OMG I LOEV TEH CHEMWARRIRS TEHY SHOOTS TEH TUBERIUM TAHT MAEKS TEH PEEOPLE FAL DOWN.

IRON-FART First of all, I didn't make many mistakes.

IRON-FART wrote:

Putting an extra apostrophe where it doesn't belong doesn't make me illiterate. Its just a simple mistake.

That "simple" mistake is worse than any of the mistakes I made in this topic. Before you begin correcting me on little things, you should first learn how to say "it's" correctly.

Warranto wrote:

just a tid-bit of information here,

its= possessive form of the pronoun "it".
it's= contraction of the words "it is".

Two completely different words. It has nothing to do with grammar, and everything to do with using the correct word where it is supposed to be used.

You wouldn't say go left, have someone drive over a cliff, then make an inference that it doesn't matter that you mean right. Two different words used for two different meanings.

IRON-FARTPutting an extra apostrophe where it doesn't belong doesn't make me illiterate. Its just a simple mistake.

Read Warranto's quote, I think he explained it perfectly for me. Meaning, it's not a simple mistake.

It's IRON-FART's decision to either let the topic go back to its original state or to keep replying with more things that I can easily defend.

If I may make a point.

Spoony makes a thread obviously addressed to DeathGod

DeathgodI'd pay money to see 20 chemwarriors harvywalk on Hourglass all at once SpoonyDoes this offer still stand? Because I'll make it happen, by god I will.

DeathgodSure, get me a video and I will send you something. I don't know if it'll be money, but I will send you something.

Lo and behold, the question asked has been satisfactorily answered! I don't think I'd be too crazy for saying the words "Topic" and "Closed" spring to mind! :rolleyes:

Funny thread..

Surprised nobody has mentioned this, but 20 chemwarriors can scarcely fit behind a harvester. I would say four or maybe five in one line, then the next line of five, then the next and the last.....I think the last five would be far enough back to be seen by the Tower of Guard.

Hell I'll send you money if you can do it.
