I was wondering if anyone could lend me a good banner representing Renegade that is not all pixelated out as a lot of people said. I was also wondering if Renguard.com would let me host Renguard as a download on my site. My site is in the works and will not be finished for some time. I am in need of banners for Renegade and new ideas.

Please visit the site here. NOTE the counter does not work right yet.

I think RenGuard is free to distribute, but even if they give the OK, they aren't going to encourage that anyone download from anywhere other than Renguard.com even if your website hosts a legit version. Just because of the nature of the program, not because they don't trust you.

If you want to improve your website, here are some steps you can take:

- Make all the font uniform, and stay away from Times Roman and similar fonts for web use. (Verdana is a good choice if available)
- Choose a simple color scheme (2-4 colors) and stick with it.

Eventually, you will be able to find a more reliable host, and if you improve the site, I'm sure there is someone in the community who will host it for free.

As for the banner: Get a good idea of what you want on it. What do you want it to say and what picture/mood you want for it.

Then just collect pictures from any C&C game, and Photoshop them into a banner. There are people in the community who might do this for you also. I know some people in this community and are incredible with Photoshop.

We do not authorize ANY third party mirrors. We have sufficient bandwidth to handle our own load.

I think linking to the site would be preferred over linking to any files. But that's simply my opinion, and has no bearing on what the RenGuard team would say.
