Well, it's nice of you to dedicate a whole topic to DarkDemin, but it isn't really necessary.

deadfive, will you fuck off with making these new posts! for crying out loud!
Its nice graphic design from DarkDamin, but learn to use the reply button!

There is no point on being on a community forum if you can't act like a member of it.

Andy.

True, old topics tend to go off topic, especially when Aircraftkiller replies coz everyone seems to get into petty arguments the moment s/he opens his/her mouth... Plus it getsyou looking around more, if that's a good thing. It can go too far though

He most likely didn't accidentally hit "New Topic" because he put a message in the subject.

Simply telling him that a reply instead of a new topic will suffice. You don't have to bombard him with flame posts.

Actually, you can put a message for subject even when you are replying.

I know that, but who does put messages in subjects when replying? It's useless.

Hey dudes he was just givin' recognition where recognition was due...! I think it's worthy of a new subject line...I'm mean, heck, the subject heading is the self filter I use to decide whether I wish to read a specific topic or not.
Cut him some slack eh!
