ok
for some reason i decided to download the "unrules maps" just to check them out, they totally messed up my renegade.
I uninstalled renegade and installed it again then installed rengaurd and it said i had "corrupt maps" and i downloaded to always and script things it said to download to override them nothing happened then i uninstalled everything again i have no clue what to do. HELP!

Manually delete everything, then reinstall.

Hey, he posted ONE time. "Here he goes again!" And you two posted twice. And now you've got me in here pointing this out so you've just caused three posts... My post is different however. Because it will be on topic.

To Renguard dude: When you uninstalled, did you delete the Renegade folder? If not whatever corrupt maps you had probably weren't removed. It might not be the problem but it's worth a shot.

WNxCABALDon't reply to Mr. No Balls post, he is seeking attention.
You just gave him the attention by making it a point to call him "Mr. No Balls". Fucking hypocrites.

well this is the first I have heard, all the stuff in the map pack works with renegade so Unless you installed them in the incorrect directory; you're the only one that has had the problem thus far...

anyway they are not "Unrules Maps" they are map makers map, the files are just hosted on the unrules site.

Look in the readmes to see who made each map. This is why I hope next version of brenbot or corepatch will have an option that will list each map makers name when it loads their particular map.

Because it was obvious that you were... I mean, I doubt you would be telling Doitle to not respond to cmatt when he hasn't done anything.

Either that or you didn't delete the correct maps before installing the next map pack. If you chose to overwrite it may have done it wrong and corrupted the file.

Overwriting them does nothing adverse, stop pretending to know something about the engine.

hmm, I just installed the maps from the packs without ever deleting anything (even when it says in the readme to do so), and it still works fine
