Well.... There is this gian island off of the coast of Africa that's falling apart... When part of this island breaks off sometime in the near future, a giant tidal wave will be created.

I heard about a volcano on one of the Canary Islands that when it blows, a nice chunk of it will drop straight into the ocean, creating a giant tidal wave. (Off the coast of Africa, so idk if it's the same thing you're talkin bout, but ya)
I guess I watch too much Discovery Channel and History Channel though.

Isn't there supposed to be a "super volcano" in Yellowstone Park (I think) that when it blows will kill something like over 1 million Americans in some stupidly small time scale like 1 minute, rain hot lava on a couple of million more and cause huge dust clouds to cover most of the Western Hemisphere? Thus killing everyone in all the Americas (and probably bits of Russia too). Maybe that's what will happen. I dunno if it's real, someone on my college forum mentioned it earlier this year.

Yes, I heard about that one also. It's past it's due date, so it could actually happen at just about any time really (the show was called Countdown to Doomsday or something along those lines).

Given the Super Volcano erupts, a good portion of the U.S. will be destroyed and the ash from it could block out the sun to most of the U.S. for a while

Not sure about the rest of what you were told, I'm going on what I've heard about it (and remembered), so yea.

Actually, the consequences are far more worse. More than 10 million Americans are going to be killed. The aftermath of the explosion will block out the sun in on almost all of Earth, initiating another ice age.

Also, Bush will die before the next presidential election. The Tecumseh Curse decrees so.

At this point, I can't say that we'd be losing a good president. So far, 3 of us "hardcore" Republicans are turning against him. Hydra, cowmisfit, and me... I'm sure there's more, but I can't be arsed to ask everybody.

Damn. I hate cold weather.

Seriously, though, it wouldn't necessarily be a full-blown ice age. There are several of those super-volcanos around the world, and they have erupted before in human history without causing an ice age (one of them, it is theorized, went off around the time Atlantis was rumored to have disappeared- accounting for the reports of persistent dark clouds in just about every part of the world around that time period, as well as a global temperature drop- but not an ice age by any means).

In that site he says that the prediction is that America (as in the entire country) will be destroyed by a tsunami. But anything big enough to create a tsunami that large would also wipe out a lot of Canada, a lot of Europe, half of Africa, South America, Central America, etc. (including some of the middle east) if it happened in the Atlantic... Or a lot of Canada, Japan, China, Australia, the Phillippines, (some of) India, Centra America, South America, and various other Asian countries and Islands if it happened in the Pacific.

The side of the mountain on that island off of Africa falling into the ocean isn't enough to do that, if/when that happened, we're only talking about a couple miles inland flattened/flooded along the eastern coast of America. (And other coastal regions in countries around the Atlantic.)

Pretty much the only thing large enough to cause a tsunami to wipe out America, would be a comet/asteroid impact in either the Pacific or the Atlantic, which would be large enough to take out the rest of the world too.

I'm pretty sure that since "Allah" is the one destroying America, he'll provide some sort of miracle to save the other land masses.. Maybe it'll be like Moses where a giant wall of water will just flow across the US and be held back by some mystical force on either border.

Yes, it would create a 'mega tsunami' that would for the most part demolish the eastern part of the USA, and maybe part of Atlantic Canada. The wave would supposedly stay together for up to 10 or more miles inland.

I think they've been blowing off pieces of that island over the last little while though.

How would there be a super volcanoe? Wouldn't volcanoes around the world blow out first from all the pressure?

Some spots are more likely for volcanos to form. Hawaii is right above a hot spot in the earth's crust. That's how the islands were formed. And lava doesn't exactly move too fast, it really can't vent out someplace on the other side of the world. At least as far as I know.

There was a predictment from the pentagon that a part of the netherlands would be destroyed in, I think it was, 2006. So at least one part of europe will already be gone by then. Not that it really matters we dutch already live below sea level anyway.

I agree, also I read somewhere that a tsunami caused by a meteor/comet large enough since the earth is 70% water it would go like 3x around the world in 32 hours ore so. Not only the USA would be having problems the entire world would..
There is like 3, dont know the size exactly but a mate showed me. and british siencetist believed it could be a threat somewhere close to this date aswell.

every time one of these predictions come out, they sound believable enough yet they always seem to be happening in just a couple of years time. Of course by that time everyone will have forgotten the prediction so the predictist gets away with it. Not saying it isn't true or there's no basis for the predicament but people make dramatic predictions quite often and publicize them.

Loosely related. who has heard of the bible prophecy that says during the age of the rebirth of Israel (now) a series of events will occur as well as the rebirth of jesus christ, and basically the end of a lot of the world as we know it? I read this on both a website, which looked BS, but the same thing was more or less said in a documentary about it not long ago, which predicted this in 2007 while the website only said "in the near future". They all say that the bible's prophecies have all been fulfilled thus far, saying what the prophecies were and pointing out that they happened, but they didn't prove that the bible actually prophecised these things, no documentation, or that they were precise prophecies that could not have been fulfilled any other way; although they did include some quotes from the bible. here is something I found about these end of the world prophecies, and it does have relation to this topic even though it's a religious site:

The ArticleSilwadi said his study of the Koran showed that the US would perish mainly because of its great sins against mankind, including the Native Americans and blacks.

"As soon as the Europeans started arriving in the new world discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1492, they declared a war on the so-called Red Indians, the legitimate owners of the land," he wrote. "Then they began enslaving and humiliating Africans after kidnapping them from their countries and bringing them to America. Millions of blacks were brought to the US and treated with unprecedented harshness. Those who became ill during the journey were thrown overboard to feed the fish."

I despair when I read articles like this, clearly there just to incite racial hatred

That's not entirely true. It was the Arabs originally enslaving the Africans. The Europeans just bought them on their Triangular route from Europe to Africa to the Colonies in America. It's amazing how Silwadi just happened to forget that his people had a major part to play in the slave trade.
