You are looking at the new software for these forums. It's called "FUDForums" not to be confused with everyone's favorite clan.

I have NOT themed the forums yet... just give me time. I wanted a more secure software for you to use.

Yeah, the converter did a really good job except that I had to delete inactive user #8 and take his number... apparently the forum needs "anonymous" to be user #1.

I think this view (avatar, name, etc. over post) looks better, you get extra space for your post.

The forum just needs to get the general color/theme of the older one, the layout and some features don't need to be changed, removed, etc. like before to match it, it just needs to have the general look of the old forum.

(Now, is it just me, or does any other normal member have moderating options visible besides me?)

lol i can edit ur posting =P

Please allow a identical to before theme in the control panel for people who loved that. I loved the old forums... The theme was the best from any forum ever. I couldn't live with bright gray forums... So far though as far as the change of software goes this seems to work pretty similar. Nothing too complicated. Still can put in pictures and stuff.

Now we can upload images (and other files) to the reply. (I'd suggest increasing the max file per message limit to like 5, otherwise you'd get several posts in a row from the same person to upload several images.)

Just so you all know, I have a complete log of ALL edits done to posts. So unless you want to be banned for a while, I'd suggest you all knock it off.

Please stop complaining about the layout. I have posted in BOLD at the top of the forum that this is temporary. This is the default layout, but thanks to the neat templating engine I will be able to create something a lot more familiar very soon.

In phpBB, the "Edit" permission means that you edit your OWN posts. In this forum, it translated to "anyone can edit anyone's post". I don't know why such a permission would be desired by anyone, but it's shut off now. I thank you all for having a modicum of maturity about it (just a bit anyway) and not deleting everything again. If I find the damage to be extensive I'll restore another backup but I think just this one thread was sabotaged.

Good to hear we will be seeing a return to normalcy Crimson. Don't work too hard though, I would imagine all these backups, forum changes, attacks have taken quite a bit of your time lately. Don't want you passing out from sleep on the lawn with Z's because you hadn't slept in days trying to fix Renegade Forums.

Also I locked one post, on page... 36 or something to test if the moderator tools were in fact not just appearance but real. I figured that was the most harmless test I could do. It was on like June Ive actually stopped playing Starcraft since someone stole my Battle.Net account. Ive never really had a taste for Single Player, and it would probably take a few years to get all the old maps i had back. Unless theyre still on my old computer.

Fear my Zealot army of four whole units! BUAHAHAHAHAHAHAAA!!Suddenly realizes that a well placed Siege Tank could kill this army. Crap.
