So, he's not a bad guy because what he did didn't directly affect you? Do you have any idea how ridiculous that is?

So, you wouldn't think that Hitler (or any other mass murderer) was a bad person, right?

Last time I checked, bullets can't cure AIDs.

Or do you mean fighting rebels? We tried that.

Note: I wasn't comparing anyone or anything to Hitler or Nazis. He said he had no problem with and didn't think Saddam (and now Hitler) was a bad person because what he did didn't affect him. Any mass murderer (or anyone else that did anything bad that didn't affect him) would have fit, but in addition to that, he was a country's leader, and the most infamous.

(Also, Godwin's law is that eventually a comparision to Hitler/Nazis will be used as an insult as a flame war/argument continues. And I don't remember calling him or comparing him to Hitler or a Nazi.)

I didn't know what it meant at first,,,

Godwin's law (also Godwin's rule of Nazi analogies) is an adage in Internet culture that was originated by Mike Godwin in 1990. The law states that:

As an online discussion grows longer, the probability of a comparison involving Nazis or Hitler approaches one.

There is a tradition in many Usenet newsgroups that once such a comparison is made, the thread is over, and whoever mentioned the Nazis has automatically lost whatever argument was in progress. In addition, it is considered poor form to invoke the law explicitly. Godwin's law thus practically guarantees the existence of an upper bound on thread length in those groups. Many people understand Godwin's law to mean this, although (as is clear from the statement of the law above) this is not the original formulation.

I find it really sad, that some people don't know who Saddam is, or think that he can be compared to Osama Binladen.

Osama Bin Laden fights for an, in his eyes, higher cause. He fights a religious war.

Saddam, is more the typical dictator. Focused for the biggest part on his welfare. I'm not even sure if he is a full muslim or not.
