Alright. There are way the Hell too many of these god damned "blacklisted" bans going around. I'm getting this vibe that all of these people are just thick and can't install Renegade with RenGuard correctly, even though it's pretty damned easy. In that, one of the pre-1.037 versions of Renegade's "game.exe" inedvertedly became automatically blacklisted.

My second instinct tells me that people are trying to replace/edit their "game.exe"/"game2.exe" file in some way or another either before or after installing RenGuard. In addition to cheats and hacks, this includes various "no-CD" patches that people might install and whatnot.

My third instinct is, of course, people are genuinely cheating, then whine about it when they get busted.

Crimson. Blackhand Studios. Can we get some freaking information going here?

What must you do? I suggest quit acting like a moron and learn to play the game without cheats.

There was an executable released on a cheat site which attempted to bypass RenGuard. A way was found to detect it and now we're getting flooded with the retards that [tried to] use it.

No, but that is a good idea. Then again, i could just take the three seconds it takes to make it, and stop being as lazy... No, i think i like your idea better.

I just chuckle at these morons. They will post 1-10 posts, to try to get unbanned, then they go home and cry.
