Subject: a bad problem with my connection...
Posted by ben5015se on Tue, 30 Aug 2005 14:33:38 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

ok iv been having this horrible problem for over 2 months now and it is seeming to get worse.

about every 10-20 minuts i have a buble comming up saying my connection has been unpluged...when in reality its not and everything has to reconnect..now when i really unplug my cable and plug it back in aim doesnt need to reconnect..and yesterday it has gotten really bad with extra lag... everythings ping is over 100 on ren its like 250 is the lowest,so i cant host! i reinstalled windows a number of times and i guess its not windows (wow who would have thought) i dont know maybe its my cable or ethernet port..but why the high ping?

help would be aperciated

Subject: Re: a bad problem with my connection...
Posted by Weirdo on Wed, 31 Aug 2005 06:54:04 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Do you have dial-up or DSL connection?

There is an internet setting for dial-up to turn off the connection after 20 minutes of being idle. But I think it only considers browsing web pages as not idle.

Subject: Re: a bad problem with my connection...
Posted by ben5015se on Wed, 31 Aug 2005 15:22:55 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

i have dsl

my cord is so messed up and my input for the cord is..im just going to buy a new ethernet cord and a new cord -.-