There is a difference between say 30 serials, and 50000 serials, is there?

Do you see anyone else attempting to build such a system?

My "stash" of like 20 serials is mostly already given out, and if I did put them into such a tool, they would be gone in about 30 minutes.

What we really need is a KeyGen. Im sure they had a list, but most likely a common means is used.

That's what I thought too, but it turns out there is a database on their end that needs to match the serial as well so we cannot generate them ourselves.

I doubt so much of a database as a security check of the value(s) which the key encrypts.
