I am honestly thinking about starting my own hosting company. Why? Because after seeing that every idiot, or every kid still in high school is starting one... I'm thinking, what the hell?

I would never host anything with a company that has a site has horrendously bad as that. You need to pay more attention in English class or go back to 6th grade and learn better spelling.

I like how your site uses one of the worst free templates ever. The template doesn't fit your site AT ALL! The colours are horrible and none of the layout fits together.

The add just pisses me off.

Do you even have your own server or are you planning on just selling someone hosting and then going to another company to buy it?

You could just ban him so we don't have to read or look at all his pointless stuff...

I think I am going to print out your website. Just so I can whipe my ass with it. That's about all it is good for.

Ah yes, I'm going to send my money to a site offering no visible services from the main page.

And DEFINATELY would I send my money, or even ask for a free hosting from a site that says this at the bottom:

Quote:Template From Free Templates.

... Riiiiight.

Everyone on you're cite seems to understand the American language quite good. I Especially Like How You Capitalize Every Single Word In Your Sentences As Well.

How can you trust a website or even a company that doesn't even understand basic grammar?

My point exactly.

"Were sorry for the downtime but we have went to Cpanel!"

Go back to school and learn english before trying to trick people into giving you their money.

Seriously dude, you've aimed high, and come crashing down to earth. Try advertising somewhere where people DON'T know what a moron you are.

I personally wish he would just disconnect his computer and sell the parts for scrap. He's a complete waste of bandwidth. I don't see how this idiot thinks we're going to come to him for hosting. Why would we trust an idiot with taking our money and giving us hosting? That's like giving a criminal they keys to our houses and expecting the criminal to protect us.

Jake are you forgetting the fact that nearly everyone on here has the ability, or knows someone with the ability (that they trust,) to host for them!

Plus the guarentee that it wouldn't be a crapy free template, but bought or (and most probably) custom made to actually FIT the resolution, theme, requirements and lets not forget the English language itself!

Bravo
