I most hate these things:

1. Almost no one buys vehicles
2. I am almost the only one who repairs vehicles on the battlefield(This is how I got many recomendations)
3. No one mines the tunnels on maps without defences
4. No one co-operates
5. (in RenAlert) People buy demo trucks when enemy invades the base
6. Enemy constantly uses Noobjets
7. People Buy APCs when APC rush just is not possible
8. When on Nod team, almost all people use artillery only
9. Everithing except point 5.

I could go on and on... But I still love this game more than CounterStrike.

I fail to see the point in complaining about it. You might as well bitch at people for repairing vehicles and buildings to keep those from getting destroyed. It's not cheap...just smart. If you're right next to a PT and some dude is shooting you, it's just plain stupid to NOT take advantage of the refill. Besides...if the person you're shooting is near a PT they can use, then they are in their own base and you are invading it- therefore they are well within their rights to use any and all means within the scope of legal gameplay to evict you. Too bad for you; bring backup next time and aim for the head.

The term 'Sniping' in renegade just stands for 'shooting at close range' when this is one of the aspects of CQC.

Sniping for me is still being able to pick of someone from a long distance and having the patience for it.

ofcours I suck at CQC and prefer Sniping

First and foremost cheaters.
The damage a ramjet inflicts on light armor vehicles.
Wreckage shells, and vehicle crates, especially when you have taken the other teams building.
The stupid ass God crate what the fuck is that bullshit.
The fact that your team can dominate a match, and lose by points. IE A match at Walls where Nod has all 4 structures and GDI only has the barracks.
That a sniper at Field can be the games MVP.
Players with tunnel vision. "I want to be a sniper, and I don't care if the refinery is almost gone. I'm getting a sniper."
Players that over value a character and undervalue a structure. I saw an SBH watch a hotwire go into the refinery. He keyed the radio but never went in to defend it himself. A 400 credit character is worth more than the refinery? Thats only if he gets killed.

What is the song by Sonny and Cher? "And the list goes on"

I forgot these gems.
Leaving a structure repairable after detonating 2 remote and 2 timed c4.
Blasting your enemy in the back of the head with a shotgun, then proceeding to fight with them to get the kill.
Killing your enemy with one shotgun blast, even though it was a clear miss.
Warping, especially when I have just tossed my c4 on to the MCT.

I mean to say, a shotgun blast to the head, at point blank range should take only 1 shot. Sometimes it works, but other times it does not. Other times, I can be from the door of the AGT to the back wall and get a kill with 1 shot. Even if I don't aim so good.

I also, hate losing a game. I'm a sore loser.

The worst is...

People who repeatedly buy 1000 dollar snipers no matter how many times they die from a copter, not even once trying to buy a copter instead, because that would take a minimal amount of skill.

And even worse is people who buy 1000 dollar snipers when the enemy barracks/hand of Nod goes down. and even if you do kill the assholes with a shotgunner/soldier they'll come right back at you with another stupid $1000 sniper *cracks nuckles* Ok, this might take a sec...

People who !n00b me for tunnel mining, even when I get twice as many kills than them.

People who accuse me of hacking when I salute them.

My biggest complaint: Idlers. These people deserve a special place in heck.

RG users who use aimbot and get 70 kills while those who actually have skill can only get 30. I'm talking about you, P0thead.

People who use "1337 5p34k."

The rule where I can't speak German.

Idiots who fill the Barracks with 30 mines and yell at their teammates for trying to mine the PP.

PEOPLE WITH THEIR CAPS LOCK KEY STUCK. Sheesh.

People who insult the administrator.

People who login and sit around in the barracks typing "this game sux" for the whole game. Pick up a d*** rifle and help, or leave!

People who will attempt to repair a building while they're standing on top of a timed c4.
!n00b wars. 'Nuff said.
!recs for "so-and-so !n00bed you, so I'll make up for it."
People who donate me their entire fortune in the last 30 seconds expecting a !rec.
People who donate me 5 creds at any point and ask for a !rec.
People who ask me for a !rec.

----Wow, I think I'm getting WAY too into this.----

People who flood the server with insults.
People who take the spawn weapons after I kill a small army while they hide in a corner.
People who wonder why I !n00b them for that.
People who call me b3. It's b3rku7. Or preferrably, Berkut. No one names their kid b3.
People who "txt typ."
People who type in the dark.
56K users.
People who mock me for !rg'ing myself. (I sometimes need to test if my RG has crashed.)
People who, and I will never understand this, shout "It's Peanut butter and Jelly Time!" 50 times on one map.
The difficulty in reporting exploits.
Parents who haven't talked to their kids about network security and they repeatedly try to tell me their name, age, address, etc.
People who stand still in the middle of a field and call me "nubjut" when I kill them.
People who Apache rush, and then complain when our 'nubjets' wipe them from the sky in seconds.
Certain cocky moderators. (Yeah, you have rank, but you're not gods. Some of my fellow cadet Master Sergeants make more mistakes than our Corporals.)
People who try to advertise their sites/products/selves. Get a life.
The laser-chaingunner's character model. Butt-ugly.
Idiot's trying to fly transport heli's in the midst of actual pilots. I enjoy shooting you down .
Chem sprayers. I imagine they smell quite bad.
Mutant Raveshaw (as a character). Jerk. 10 headshots with a rocket launcher, twenty pounds of c4, 3 cannisters of combustible oil... and two shots with a pistol. I still died.

Alright. That's enough for now.

EDIT: Er, the Raveshaw thing refers to single-player mode.

Let's be friends.

You change your mind pretty quick.

PPS: Three-mine-stack at head-height = instant death to moron who doesn't watch where he is going. Including the moderator who !n00bed me for it

Though, I would understand if I was being !n00bed for throwing down 30 in the same spot. (Watched an idiot do that once. Not only did it leave the base unprotected, but the enemy saw the mines, walked around them, and proceeded.)

PPPS: This practice allows for close medic support in the tunnels, as well as covers their retreat. I saved quite a few people because their pursuer ran into a mine-stack.

And... I never use more than six mines in an entire map. The other 24 are usually thrown in the PP by some random n00b.

There's a reason why they're called n00bjets, and I'll explain.

1. Most of them shoot at anything they see, including tanks, some may even sit in their base doing this. and when they shoot apache's/stanks they get massive points. So they're shooting them just for points, and it's a bug because why in god's name should you get about 20 points per shot in shooting a stank? That'd be over 500 points if the stank had around full health.

2. Secondly, they're n00bjets because it's not entirely hard for ANYONE to shoot a copter down, especially when a band of them are together, since it takes 5 (count: 5 shots) to take ONE down.(Which isn't all too hard since the bullet is instant and you're firing at a VEHICLE) That means with two n00bjets it takes 3 shots each (no reload) with three n00bjets it takes 2 shots each and with 5 it'll only take one. The only good thing going on for the guy in the copter is he knows that most are going to be n00bs since the whole principle of shooting a copter and getting points is so entirely easy that it's like a big fuckin' magnet for n00bs to use them.

3. Thirdly, they'll even go as far as to just stay in the damn windows the entire game potshooting anything just for points, you aren't going to kill one sitting in the window, you're just doing it for points. If you want to really cover a field, you go to the bridge, but even then most often or not, a n00bjetter won't have the testicular fortitude to go by himself on the bridge, that he'll wait in his base where his base defence protects him and copters can't reach. Only when does this retard get a group of two or more havocs with him would he finally go on the bridge. Then, by the time you notice them shooting your team they probably already gained enough points to buy a new havoc after i kill all three. They'll keep doing this, over and over and over. Usually not even ONCE trying to use a copter to kill the copter because a sniper has such an obvious advantage over with its stupid damage bug abuse.

The sad thing is: I see it more often lately than ever. Seeing a team with 7+ havocs, and when they finally lose their barracks? They'll suck the entire game because they can't use anything else to have a decent score without having to n00bjet the entire game. Often times they leave.

PS: And you also you'll find it's their first character of choice to buy after the enemy hand/barracks is dead.

Good. I hate cats. I managed to beat Mutant Raveshaw later, but who the heck can take 7 rockets to the face?

Also: More things I hate:

The glitch where I cannot use a PT without first throwing a timed c4 on myself (only way to keep your money).

People who mock me for doing this.

People who continually waste ammo on their own teammates.

People who spend the whole 30 minutes shooting their name on the BAR wall.

People who will die trying to repair a building, but ignore the beacon they're standing next to. (We lose so many refineries that way.)

People who spend the entire time complaining about lag. (Use !lagfix and move out.)

The credit lag when a harvester is dropping off Tiberium at ref (for 15 secs, you can't gain credits). People who !forcerg me every time I kill them (I have Renguard, so it won't work, morons.)
VechEdit
People who repair sbh's in the field, marking their position for an easy kill.
People who complain because they die of "invisible mines" in the tunnels. (Heh. My signature strategy. Very hard not to die from.)
The startup noise for Renguard. Not that it's bad, just a little repetitve.

BTW, it can't be called nubjet if both sides use it in the same way. Either don't lose your Bar/HON to begin with, or don't complain when the enemy point-whores.

People who !force rg me for killing them...because they walked into my artillery shell while I was protecting a nuke. People will !force rg me for anything. Here are some of the reasons:

- (some curses first) killed me
- mining the tunnels (my team and theirs)
- I'm in the game and don't have RenGuard
- They felt like it
- SBH sniping
- Killing their SBH by spotting with scope
- Destroying their buildings
- Stealing their tanks (enemy tanks)
- Grabbing the crate before they do
- When I don't donate to them
- When I don't do what they tell me to (like repair them when one of my team's structures is about to die)
- For spotting a stank rush and not saying the side (because I didn't know the side)
- For suggesting that we use a stank rush
- For ignoring someone who was cursing at me
- I killed them with my pistol (when they had 5hp)
- I had 5000 credits from being in the game and repairing
- I killed their friend
- Because their friend told them to

Is there a way to prevent abuse of !force rg? I don't cheat, and they know it, but they abuse the function. And our Admin does not allow us to install RenGuard anyhow.

I hate being the only person willing to take one for the team and get a Hotwire/Technician during an incoming rush, because being a lone repairer usually ends up with me being unable to save the building I'm in. It also often leaves me as the last higher-level repairer, which usually gives me more responsibility to camp, remine, and be bored the rest of the map.

very few people work as part of a team.
cheaters and when admins do nothin about them.
n00bs,who dont understand tactics and patience.
there are only a few players that i hav met that work as part of a team, they are very good players that have realised that teamworks is essential for victory. where as others dont wanna listen or take orders and think they can do it all themselves.

Heh, you aren't the only one who does that...I've been a Mr. Fix It since Ren came out. The only times I won't give up my upper-tier char for even a basic engineer is when the HoN/Barracks is dead and I'm using an anti-vehicle class, or if I just happen to be in a vehicle. In either case, I'm of more value killing whatever is doing the damage, but otherwise the loss of a 1000 cred char for a free engi isn't any trouble. No point worrying about it when everything just resets next round anyhow.

A few things really piss me off in Ren: n00bjets and people who get out of their vehicles in the middle of the field. Nothing says "hey, steal my tank" like an empty damn tank. If you don't have repair support, either pull back to your base to heal or bite the fucking bullet. In all my time playing Ren, I've yet to have my vehicle pinched by the bad guys, but I see it happening to others all the time (when I can actually get online, thanks be to this shitball campus network). Even if your vehicle isn't stolen by marauding infantry, you're likely to get popped by a sniper, leaving your teammates to divert their attention from shooting the enemy to cleaning up your mess. It's just not worth it.

Even worse: stickheads who use tanks to infiltrate the enemy base. They drive up to the PP, the HoN, the Refinery, whatever...then they just get out to lay C4 while the tank sits there just inviting someone to come along and grab it. It's bad enough seeing a Hummer/Buggy or an APC swiped after a raid gone bad, but a tank is just fucking ridiculous. And don't even get me started on people who do stupid shit like that with other peoples' vehicles...

i s'pose it doesnt even occur to the ppl who drive to the pp or ref or whatever in tanks and apcs,to hav a second person in the vec to stop the enemy to take it.

i also hate it when your team has decided to stank or med rush the enemy and some noob in your team decidees to buy an mrls/orca or humvee. it lowers your vec limit and will mean you will have less tanks for teh rush.

tank stealers..people who steal your tank in your base. n00bs.

people who dont mine as well. i told a player to make sure to mine both sides of teh agt on hourglass. he didnt. others said it was useless. guess what? the enemy rushed us and with no mines shbs,stanks and flamers just walked into our base.every time. it was hard enough to kill them off. and we lost the game.

oh and people who dont donate. if your team needs an extra 20 or 100 creds for an ion or vec, why not give them it? it could do them more use then you. help your team out. it helps.

Getting !forcerg'ed by a mod because he thinks he's all that, and once I kill him, I must be cheating. There's no way possible there is anyone better than him. At least its funny coming back with RG and still owning him.

Being accused of cheating whenever I headshot people with tanks. Just because it might be hard headshotting a PIC or Rav shooting you doesn't mean its impossible.

Being accused of having a magical lag cheat where I can make other people lag at a whim, even in their own server.

People who think they are the best at Renegade and anyone who is better than them is cheating.

People who flip my apache while I'm inside repairing the airstrip after killing the hottie that was inside of it because they want to buy a vehicle.

It's pretty easy to see why people would be reluctant to fork over credits, even if it is a nice and helpful thing to do. You really do never know how much good the person is going to do with it- and I have donated 500+ creds to folks just to have them get blasted 5 feet outside the base because they weren't being careful. Anymore, I like to wait a round before donating to anyone, just so I can get a feel for who could make the best use of it (if someone gets MVP then asks for creds, for example, it's probably worth lending them a hand...but if someone is consistently rambo rushing and dying, you ought to save it for your own needs). In general, though, if you have extra credits that you don't need, by all means- give them to someone who'll put them to some use, especially in the late game when you could easily have enough for an extra tank or two.

Uh oh, you made a double post. Your signature and avatar are both kind of big and stick-mannish. Sore thumbish if you will. You better have your cup ready. Your nut sacks gonna look like a football coming off Jason Elam's foot at Mile High Stadium.

a few more additions.

loading the pistol after a re-spawn. It's not that bad, just sometimes I don't have time to wait for it to load, then switch back to my repair gun. So, I just select the pistol and jump in say an arty. When I jump out to repair, I end up bustin a cap in its ass. The stupid delay when tossing c4. It seems erratic too, sometimes it's ready sometimes you have a delay.

Cool sig and avatar, bluethen. Too bad mision08 can't seem to make his own.

PS: Learn how to type, 'mision'08.

Another thing I hate, although rare, is being sent to blue hell during a rush because I hit the enemy harvester or someone else's vehicle at the wrong angle, especially when I'm in the version of blue hell that gives me 2 FPS. Having to quit and restart Renegade to fix it is really annoying.

I made my own sig and avatar with C&C95, Fraps, and Adobe ImageReady. Not too difficult, but a bit time consuming to get the screenshots timed just right. Playing the game to make them provided some good nostalgia, so afterward, I finished the entire game except for the last three Nod missions over the next few days. Good times.

I hate falling while I'm in blue hell. I usually drop a timed c4 at my feet, and I like to see a solid foundation to drop it on. Although, it works either way. Must not really be falling, or maybe it's terminal velocity. what?

No avatar or sig for me. I like to be different. I don't dislike your sig Bluethen, Just thought it might be hard to overlook. Havoc has a nice clean C&C oriented signature. Very well done, looks time consuming though.

Sorry, I can't read, write, spell or type. Now I have a little lady in my computer that reads to me, and I'm trying to make her speak more fluently. Joe Namath said it best "struggling".
