It seems like somewhat of a challenge. They don't except reason, nor logic. And they don't use any of it themself. Sure it can be somewhat easy to beat them in a forum such as this because people tend to gang up. But what if your one on one and not even on the net? Or if there's a group of little kids and only one of you? Also assuming it isn't a sibling because there's a way to deal with them >.> <.< (Side note: They need a ninja or shifty eyes smiley).

Generally, if I haven't slapped the living hell out of them for annoying me, I state that I've won the arguement, and it's over. That's if I win. If I'm losing the arguement, I just tell the kid to shut up and quit bothering me. Though I do that anyway, so it's hard to tell if I lose the arguement or not.

Depending on how young we're talking, I don't think you CAN lose to a little kid. If you do, you need to reexamine your opinions.

I don't argue with little kids. The last time I argued with a "little kid" was when i was one. It's hard to say what I'd do in victory or defeat.

I choose to use their logic with the "nuh uh" and "no, you" tactics to throw them off and to eventually quit bothering me.

You can't win from a kid. Rmember: "the trueth comes from a child's mouth" (Dutch saying, donno in US).

The same way I argue with anybody else: illogical, incoherent, and contradictory statements that frustrate them to the point that they just stop arguing with me.

Take advantage of your greater strength and beat them up, or simply threaten them.

Use big words that they dont understand and, after the pause, wait for the "no you are".

Let them think that they have won the arguement, just to let the whole thing go. Afterwards, enjoy all the laughter at their stupidity behind their back. Argueing face to face with a "little kid" is pretty useless since they havn't developed any real logic.

1. Dead DaveLet them think that they have won the arguement, just to let the whole thing go. Afterwards, enjoy all the laughter at their stupidity behind their back. Argueing face to face with a "little kid" is pretty useless since they havn't developed any real logic.

2. afterward get a friend and laugh at it together; twice the fun.

After all what are u trying to accomplish?
Kids are hardheaded, ignorant, annoying,... so u'l iether end up with having a big headache or a nice anecdote to amuse your friends.

I dont think you can "win" with a little kid. No matter what you do or how much sence you make, in there mind, they still win.

Well, usually I don't. I'm reasonably easy to get along with. When I do get into arguments with kids, I usually resort to some of the techniques listed here.

Or if it's online, I ignore them. I mean, if I can't even cause them that much discomfort from beating them.

People have been attacked with baseball bats before too. That must mean baseball bats are bad.

I usually speak German to freak 'em out. That or Russian with a Sean-Connery in "Red October" accent. Scares the liquid crap out of them.

One of the more evil things to do is wait until it evolves into a full-blown argument. Right as they start making their point I...

Wander off and walk away. You should here the "Ugh!" noises they make. And the stomping-the-foot-on-the-ground makes it worth it!
