Wondering if anyone here has seen the 9/11 documentary, Loose Change. If so, what do you think about it?

(warning - video is around 1.5 hrs!)

I watched it and i liked it.

The only thing that is wrong with it is the way it looks at 9/11. In my opinion i don't think many Americans are willing to watch it and may turn off their televisions in anger because of the way it tries to denounce the government's explanation of 9/11.

Basically i don't think the tone it takes would appeal to the pro-bush audience.

I was looking in the somethingawful forums for Loose Change discussion and found these links that were provided as debunkings:

Although I haven't been able to find debunkings on some of the points that come up in the video that I can't help but see as bulletproof evidence. For example, right where the gigantic engines would have crashed into the pentagon at ridiculous speeds, there are intact windows. How does that happen? The cell phone calls made from high altitudes where successful connection rates are below 1% are also troubling.

What would you say if you heard from someone in this forum who saw the aircraft overhead as it headed to the Pentagon?

Anyways, as I stated in a different thread:

I can't vouch for the accuracy of this site, but it does explore what myths have arisen from 9/11
