Joe is one of the converts to Ace Combat. I guarantee you won't be let down by its immersive storyline and incredible visuals.

I watched the first video and within 10 seconds I though it was going to be boring. Before I knew it I was 8 minutes in and it looked like a great game.

You might have converted me. Going to watch the rest in a bit.

Ace Combat is awesome! All they need now is online play.

By the way I'm wondering if anyone plays Ace Combat games with the flight stick

Edit: Gar... I despise splitters. I won't be able to watch them until I figure out a way to get my Xbox Live hooked up without splitting the Internet that normally runs to my PC. It stops every few seconds for about 3 seconds.

I've been an Ace Combat fan ever since my friend in New York lent me "Shattered Skies."

I have (and beat), 4, I don't have (but beat with all medals and such), 5, and I have (and am working on the Silver/Gold Ace medals for), Zero.

PS: ACK, if you want a good challenge, fly a Mig31 at full speed through the arch of Toggle

SpoilerStier Castle in Zero. Took a bit of practice, but I nailed it.

Ace Combat didn't make me buy a PS2, but it did convince me to keep it. Currently looking for a copy of Air Combat and hoping that AC3 gets re-made (i.e. not in crappified US release form) some time before PS3 takes over.

I take it you're the same Nukelt on the AceCombatSkies.com forum? The same Nukelt that's been lurking around here for the past five years or so? If you want Air Combat, head to half.com and search. There's always a spare copy around there.
