Actually, it's Xfire, a messenger that tracks gaming hours and has ingame chat support.

Not sure I understand what you mean, but you can have your messenger nickname as the same one as your game one. The normal username has to be in all under case letters, but you can have capitals in your nickname.

If I understand what you're saying correctly, you're asking if you can have your ingame name and your nickname up at the same time. This is and isn't correct. Say, for instance, I had my Renegade nickname up and my normal messenger nickname up. It would have to look like this, with maybe some variation of the separator: "Purple{C}Magpie/lijitsu0". You have to have your nickname like that, though, or else it won't take.

Edit: I see what you mean. See, the name in parentheses is his username, the name to the left of it is his nickname he set up for the messenger.

The name on the signature you setup in your xfire profile, it's not linked to your ingame nickname. The name in parenthesis (which is mostly cut off) is your xfire username, again not related to your ingame nickname.

Xfire logs how long you have the games .exe open, it does not matter what nickname you use. If I logged into renegade as arandomguy it would still log the hours to the same profile

I use danpaul88 on renegade, and I usually play on thekoss2 server, which is not wolspy. Although when I want a change I play on n00bstories or unrules, which are wolspy (afaik), so I could have the misfortune of running into sensitive there...

oh, and nice thread hijacking I hereby rename this thread 'The Xfire signature thread'
