hey, does anybody need a modeller for a total conversion or somethink cos i have loads of free time nowadays and i feel like doing somethink worth doing instead of random stuff. I've been using 3ds max for about 4 years now and i know i could make alot of really interesting and cool stuff if i had a cause (rather than me messing around) so if anyone is involved in a total conversion or anything and would be interested in me then gimmeh a shout.

edit

i'll see if i can get some pics of stuff i've made

Definitely post pictures of your work. You don't think you'd get hired without a résumé do you?

Quote: Anybody want me?

omg rofl

(self-explainative, I believe)

As for the work: well, I can't make anything other than teapots in Gmax or anything alike, so yeah, it looks good to me, but it isn't amazing.

Moar.

(don't you have a portfolio?)

That tank was done in 3dsmax using it's renderer to take the picture.

Oh, and, Help-Linux, i would recommend leaving the modelling to the ones who do it best. hehe

You might want to try converting some of your shapes to editable mesh so they are not all seperate peices and just regual peaces.

Don't forget that there are a couple mod teams/potential teams advertising for support. They're not huge, obviously, but I'm sure they'd appreciate any help they can get.
