I've noticed some WiseAssers over this forum.

A WiseAsser is a person who thinks he or she Thinks/Wants/Tries or Perhaps is (Under certain point of views) To be better than others, braggers would be under the category.

Perhaps wants to be looked up to under certain conditions. i have noticed these people will do it use perfect grammer to try to look smarter than they really are, they will put Periods at the end of things that are not even sentences. for example "Ok." Attempting to gain respect from people(Not persons) Unknown, than gaoled to be looked up to in the community. These people are more likely to try to make someone else look stupid, perhaps because they are a threat to them in a way or other unknown reasons. And more oftenly not very considerate. These people will also more oftenly avoid people they feel are not very Safisticated. They take there Reputation very seriously. These people have a greater understanding of the "Outgoing world"

A Respectful is a person who is more relaxed when posting/talking, they want to be themselves, not anything else.

These people more commonly respect others and are not very worried about there reputation. These people do not have as much Ambition. These people are less likely to try to make someone else look stupid, for unknown reasons, however sometimes might. These people are also more likely to admit to things they are ashamed of. They are oftenly more Considerate. I have noticed these people will not take too much credit at once, and if they are and notice someone else Deserving is not, they will lend a hand to them, not at all times though. These people have a greater understanding of the "Outgoing world"

A Left is a person who thinks more about fitting in with others, and does not like the feeling of not fitting in, however they oftenly have a hard time fitting in. I have noticed these people are sensitive to certain things said by others, these people usually respect others and very oftenly look up to others in hope to be more like them, in some cases.

They oftenly take their reputation more seriously. These people have a lower understanding of the "Outgoing World" Can be Suicidal.

Different intelligent levels were not included here.

Well, which of these do each of you think you are, or feel closest to.

If you insist on Bashing, you are most likely an AssWiser. Depending on how you bash, but in most cases you would than fit under AssWiser, thanks

I'm resisting the temptation to correct here.

I don't give a rat's ass what my "reputation" is on this forum. I'll never get to know 99% of the people on here well anyway.

Oh, and I never said bad grammar makes you stupid. Having bad grammar means you have bad grammar, that's it. It just really gets to me that 95% of the English speaking population don't know the difference between "your"/"you're" and "there"/"their"/"they're", even though it's such a simplistic concept and so easy to grasp.

I never said that you think people are stupid if they have Bad grammer, i was just pointing that out. Alot of people get Their "Theres" mixed up, and comma's. Actually, I probably just did.

Everyone has small things that bother them, it does not make you an asswiser. Infact, you are not much of an Asswiser.

Another thing that makes you one is not taking the time to understand and consider someones point, or message etc...not that you would have done that.

While having poor grammar doesn't make you stupid, it sure as shit doesn't make you look smart.

On a bit of a tangent:

Clearly you can see us spelling "grammar" correctly yet you continue to spell it wrong. Why is this? It's the same number of characters, so you aren't doing it to save time. Perhaps you have a learning disability? I'm not trying to be mean; my brother is dyslexic. This sort of thing geniunely interests me.

Quote:Clearly you can see us spelling "grammar" correctly yet you continue to spell it wrong. Why is this?

Actually no, because i do not look that closely at everything to notice that an E is supposed to be an A. I am not a perfectionist. Or an Asswiser.

Thats true it does not make you look smart if you have poor grammar, but than again, if you do not have perfect grammar, it does not mean you have poor grammar. I consider my grammar OK.

I mean take a look at Moe/Sensitive grammar, thats a good example of "poor grammar"

Lets get off the grammar topic though, i do not think it is a very important thing to discuss. And it has nothing to do with the topic.

And i corrected my spelling mistake and will keep it in mind.

And pointing out things Ive done wrong or something else rather than focusing on the topic, is the ways of an Asswiser.

I just think people don't take the time to notice the spelling of others. They just read the words rather than paying attention to how they're spelled. I don't know if it's necessarily done purposely, but it sure is annoying when you spell something correctly, someone repeats that word, and then they spell it incorrectly.

I guess it's just one of those quirks in people. Learning from your peers doesn't really seem to hit home with many people.

Ever since i joined these forums, a good 3-4 months ago, i have tried to be punctual in my posts. I am usually very punctual and formal when i type posts that require formality, however, when i am talking in IRC or to contacts on MSN etc etc i tend to be slang but will use correct grammar (apostrophies (< spelling?) in correct places to determain what i'm saying, commas to influence pauses in text etc etc).

If you met me i would seem very formal for my age. With this i have been classed as being a "freak" by other students because i don't talk like they do. Some actually take the time to listen to what i say and take it all in, but still fail to see why i have this.

For those who don't generally know, yes i do have a learning dissability, yes i was diagnosed with it last year, yes i do wish to know more about it and yes, it does affect the way i think about things.

I have been playing Renegade for just over a year now, and have learnt alot since. I have joined a mod team to turn Renegade into Red Alert 2 (known as Apocalypse Rising) and have learnt alot from them. I have respect that i deserve from other team members and i wish to gain respect here. Class me as you wish, aslong as you understand what i'm going through and how hard it is for someone like me to get respect around here.

There are a lot of people older than 13 that respect other people here, actually much older. But it's pretty clear that people do care. I don't see much of a reason not to. I happen to know that you won't, which is not a bad thing.

I'm just saying, it's an overused excuse for people to use to help with self-esteem. I mean, it's an easy way out. "Oh, you're just jealous of/threatened by me." It's a scapegoat for them than to actually face the facts that maybe they aren't as important as they thought.

You are a Respectful! Not an Asswiser

Who are you to determine if a person is trying to look better than everyone else? If I wear nice shoes, does that mean I'm an asswiser that is trying to look better than everyone elses? There are infinite perspectives and there is no solid way of saying a person is trying to look better. You also can't possible say something is a "good" or "bad" classification. For example, looking inward, "introverts", does not mean it is a bad thing. Just because one person does not like to be social or around others doesn't mean that's wrong. Being talkative or not is not something to label as something as good or bad, as you clearly are doing by classifying "asswiser" as bad, otherwise you wouldn't have put the word "ass" in it. Also, what you think as someone trying to make you/others look stupid might be a person trying to help you. If a person encourages a person to spell correctly and hopefully improve their grammar, why is that bad? By your logic, I could say it is "asswiser" to not receive help from others and not learn such things.

Bottomline is there is no real way you can classify anyone into three groups and say one is worse than the other. You cannot have all good personality traits, because there is no such thing is something being better than the other. An introvert enjoys work like computers and working in an office. An extrovert likes to be more sociable and may enjoy a job like salesman or working with other people.

In fact, you're putting down others by labeling them as "asswiser" and that's a bad thing to be apparently. So by what right do you have to even comment?

I think that you may be onto something.

For someone to say that someone is an asswiser, that would be passing judgement, and passing judgement would classify you as an asswiser, as being an "asswiser" is a negative thing, so you would be making yourself out to be better, as you claim yourself capable of deciding who or who isn't an asswiser.

I did not classify anyone, That was my opinion of what i thought he was, which was a good opinion. I only classified what an Asswiser was. And if you think everything i said an Asswiser was, are good things, not bad. than i guess its only opinion, but personally i think they were all bad things. Thinking inward is not a bad thing, but when you only think inward and don't care about anyone else, than i consider that a bad thing. I asked at the beginning of the Post "What do *You think you are or are closest to" So i am really not classifying/labeling anyone . And yeah i think that almost everyone thinks putting people down is a bad thing and so do i, If you don't, i guess its just opinion.

So at end of what i said, i should have said "In my Opinion" rather than just saying "You are". My mistake

But i understand that partly, there are allot of people that want to be better, unfortunately.

I know alot of people are corrupt, but than again there are alot of really good people, and i'm not trying to stop that lol. I just want to know everyones opinion, sorry if i offended anyone, which i do not think i did.

Why settle for second place? Settling only teaches people not to give it their all because second place isn't bad. If you strive to be better than the next, then you're always going to try and improve yourself. We'll always be imperfect, but that's no excuse to refrain from actually trying.

The problem is when you start to think that you're better than everyone else, not wanting to be better.

Darker wrote on Wed, 09 August 2006 19:34 Everyones different mrpirate, some people read quicker and do not look closely at smaller things like that. But don't stress about it.

Quote:These people are more likely to try to make someone else look stupid, perhaps because they are a threat to them in a way or other unknown reasons. And more oftenly not very considerate Alot of this activity is coming from you, MrPirate. You know I'm not the Moe character, yet you have Implied that you think I might be him.

Not to mention, you will not tell us what you think you are closest to. Afraid to admit is also a way of the Asswiser.

Just look at this. He was saying you reminded him of Moe? Is this bad? Why is it bad? What is he doing here that suggested he was making you look stupid?

Also, why is it the ways of the "asswiser" to not admit what you are "closest" too? You do not have any sort of qualifications to be putting traits into a system. Making it entirely invalid. A good system would be one that if a person was say, shy, might also enjoy working in an office, they might also try not to get into people's affairs that don't need their help. You cannot put traits into a good or bad category. An obsessive compulsive person could be considered bad because it involves a lot of unnecessary things, though, in a job like watching air traffic, scrutiny is of the utmost importance and thus it would be a good thing. Likewise, if a teacher tells you to do your homework and is failing you and corrects your grammar, that might be good. A random person on the internet can do the very same, but to you this is somehow different, why? If you're going to make something of a classification system, then do not include what is right or wrong or imply something is better than the other, seeing as how just one interpretation of something is so miniscule and doesn't mean anything.

So anyways, if you say someone is doing something that an asswiser would do, which is bad, you are putting them down. You don't have to specifically call them an asswiser to do it, you know. Thus, you are being, in a way, an asswiser yourself (by your definition) This however wouldn't mean I am being it. Since, all I am doing is pointing out to you is that by your own definition you are doing the exact same thing you think is bad. Just a statement and nothing more.

So if you would RATHER put up a classification for people who generally do good things or bad things, that's up to you, but this system of yours does neither. And I'm sure if you did do just the classification system for good-bad, that no one is ever pure good or pure bad, especially when there are different interpretations for each case. Would it be completely bad if a person wasn't willing to give up his life to save another's? or even two other lives? Not everyone is capable of giving up their lives for such a cause. From an objective point of view, it would naturally be better that two people survived than one, so does this mean if a person was to be good, he would be willing to give up his life for two others? and if he wasn't that that would be bad?

To sum it up:

No. No at your classification system. Find one on the internet done by a psychologist. (Maybe introvert/extrovert) That might be something to ask. Though in most cases you'll probably find out that people are most likely introverts online. Though perhaps they once were introverts but are now extroverts. That might be something a little bit more solid than the foundations you are working on.

edit: Not to mention mrpirate has a solid point, I mean you are talking about moe/sensitive when you just registered today. That obviously means you either had an account before, and for some unknown reason you decided to get this new one. Or, you were banned and this is your new account, which is much more likely because I don't see very many people suddenly making new accounts. It's also a good point to mention the fact that the terminology "asswiser" was mentioned by moe/sensitive, which, as far as I know, only moe/sensitive/and apparently YOU know what it is.

I understand what you are saying.

Quote:If you strive to be better than the next

if you for example are "making for money or being more attractive or owning a bigger house or a bigger company"

Does that really mean you are better than them? Not really. But yes its a problem when you think you are better, rather than saying someone wants to be better, doesn't mean better than other people.

I was not as serious about what i started in my earlier posts.

Quote:Just look at this. He was saying you reminded him of Moe? Is this bad? Why is it bad? What is he doing here that suggested he was making you look stupid?

I never said he was trying to make me look stupid.

Quote:Also, why is it the ways of the "asswiser" to not admit what you are "closest" too?

by "the way of" is like a symptom, doesn't really mean anything yet.

Quote:You do not have any sort of qualifications to be putting traits into a system.

They are not Traits being put into a system, only Opinions and Terms that I came up with , No one is to say what a "Good" system would be.

Quote:So anyways, if you say someone is doing something that an asswiser would do, which is bad, you are putting them down. You don't have to specifically call them an asswiser to do it, you know. Since, all I am doing is pointing out to you is that by your own definition you are doing the exact same thing you think is bad. Just a statement and nothing more.

I never said an an Asswiser was a bad thing, just because it has ass in it, does not mean anything. So there for, i would not be putting anyone down.

Quote:So if you would RATHER put up a classification for people who generally do good things or bad things, that's up to you, but this system of yours does neither. I never said one was Good or bad, its just 2 typed of people that think differently, do different things, i guess in my opinion one is good and the other is bad, but thats just opinion. If you think an my definition of an Asswiser is a "Good person" Thats just opinion Lol.

Sorry if i made it out to be a classification system.

when you say "which one of these three are you" and only three are available none of which say "something different than what i posted" that is classifying. It'd be the same way if there was a vote saying are you gay or are you straight. Just not enough options and you aren't suggesting that there is more beyond the three, especially since you say "how come you aren't choosing one of the three?" Maybe because a person is something completely different? Or haven't you thought of that.

Also...

when you say "this activity" you are saying he is doing the suggested (this being "people...try to make someone else look stupid" If he WASN'T doing this, you wouldn't have said he was doing it, would you? You also didn't say why being like moe is necessarily something negative.

when you say "the way of" you imply he is doing something that an asswiser would do. "An asswiser's way would do this. Thus, if you do this, too, you are in the way of an asswiser" you imply that asswiser is bad, just by the name. Yes, having the word ass, and then adding wiser on it, implies you are saying it is a bad thing. If I called you a fuckwit, fuckwit, are you going to think it may not be an insult? Even so, you also imply being an asswiser is bad because you say in your own opinions so and so is bad, and you also say that this so and so is apparently the ways of an asswiser, so yes, you are very much implying asswiser as being bad.

edit:

Oh I just reread I guess at some point someone said asswiser instead of the original "wiseasser" you put in. Which would go with being a wiseass, which is a bad thing globally. So uh, yeah...

Yes but only in my opinion is an Asswiser "Bad" But who does not think these type of people are bad? Everyone has had issues with these type of people I'm sure. and Alot of people have said they think they are Asswisers but probably are not.

Z310 from my point of view is not an Asswiser at all, he is very considerate.

If I went to a forum and saw someone who posted a thread that listed three ways to identify yourself, two of which were negative and the descriptions of which seemed to be specifically worded to describe certain people's characteristics, and had a sarcastic avatar mocking the perception that various people act superior to others, I would call him a troll. And I think that would fit into category A.

That's just my opinion. Maybe I'm wrong. But maybe I'm not.

Not quite, 2 things. Do you say "OK." with a period, or without?
asswisers usually say things like "Ah huh." and "Heh." Not ever forgetting the period. If they happen to forget the period(Which is unlikely) It tends to make them angry, and usually when that happens, the person they are/were talking to when they forgot their Period! Will now be there target!
