A woman who maintains that the Harry Potter books are an attempt to teach children witchcraft is pushing for the second time to have them banned from school libraries.

crazy woman...the books were harmful to children who are unable to differentiate between reality and fantasy.

The children, she said, try to imitate Harry Potter and cast spells on classmates.

"They're not educationally suitable and have been shown to be harmful to some kids," Mallory said.

Okay, kids who are seriously trying to cast spells on classmates are either really "special", or they are just being silly and she is paranoid.

crazy womanReferring to the recent rash of deadly assaults at schools, Mallory said books that promote evil - as she claims the Potter ones do - help foster the kind of culture where school shootings happen.

LOL...so kids are going to read Harry Potter and then go buy assault weapons and shoot up the school?

Why in the hell would we ban books just for the sake of these few alleged kids that cannot tell fantasy from reality? You know what else would be "harmful to children who are unable to differentiate between reality and fantasy"? Almost anything on TV, or movies, or fictional books. Go watch any kids cartoon, and tell me if any human would survive if they tried to act it out. If kids watch Tom and Jerry and then go hit their mom on the head with a frying pan, and stick dynamite in their brothers ass because they saw it on TV, then guess what, its either the parents fault, or the kid just has mental problems. It doesnt mean that cartoons etc are evil just because some zombified kids will do anything they see, hear, or read.

Newsflash: kids imitate the world around them. Were kids playing gladiators with wooden swords in the ancient Rome? Were they playing knights in the medieval? Are they playing superheroes with laserguns and whatnot, as seen in comics? Are they trying to cast Magic Missile after playing some random rolegame? I don't see any difference in trying to cast spells after reading or watching Harry Potter...it's all normal. I'd be worried if it DIDN'T happen.

plus, even if they did 'cast a spell', there is no such thing as magic, so parents can sleep safe knowing they arent going to have a frog as a child.

We had the school book "Janet and John" banned in the UK from primary schools because of stupid people like her above.

Now they suggest that "Peter Pan" should be banned as the author has put paedophilia into his books.

Where will the paranoia and political correctness all end? Back at the times of writing on a slate, is where its all heading, to slow us down.

This is all a step backwards in the natural and modern progression of well educated children.

Sadly it's not something that can be isolated to paranoia or senseless liberalism. It's called zealotry and no self respecting religious person would ever subscribe to such childish "duck and cover"ing.

God supposedly gave us brains and I find it highly probable He wouldn't do that unless He intended us to use them to discern reality from fiction.

I wish I could meet this stupid bitch...GOD DAMN BIBLE BASHING AMERICANS..

Moving on from my rant..I think I may go read some Harry Potter then I may rack up a M16..Go down to my old school and open up. Oh wait Harry Potter is just a book..Why oh why would anyone think that. Jesus I know heroin addicts that are more sensible then her..Someone really needs to sit down with her and have a "chat". By this I mean tie her up and check if she has a brain.

True story: A friend of mine decided to have a fun time getting completely wasted on alcohol and drugs...He then started reading the bible (big mistake). He got so paranoid by reading the bible that I found him locked in his bedroom refusing to come out until I burnt the bible. Maybe it was the drugs...Maybe it was the alcohol..Maybe it was the combination of both. Reading the bible is worse then reading anything else in this world.

That leaves us in a very empty world. What offends one person is hilarious to another.

Equally so with, "the potential to cause". If you dont like it! leave it. If you think it will harm you, dont read, touch, eat feel.....etc This way the rest of the world can still enjoy.

ps. Im looking forward to the next Harry Potter book

Relates to Christians only based on the context of Romans 14:

"1Accept him whose faith is weak, without passing judgment on disputable matters. 2One man's faith allows him to eat everything, but another man, whose faith is weak, eats only vegetables. 3The man who eats everything must not look down on him who does not, and the man who does not eat everything must not condemn the man who does, for God has accepted him. 4Who are you to judge someone else's servant? To his own master he stands or falls. And he will stand, for the Lord is able to make him stand.

5One man considers one day more sacred than another; another man considers every day alike. Each one should be fully convinced in his own mind. 6He who regards one day as special, does so to the Lord. He who eats meat, eats to the Lord, for he gives thanks to God; and he who abstains, does so to the Lord and gives thanks to God."

If you aren't a christian, don't reply. This isn't directed at you.

So if a person goes and steals a tank like in Renegade, they should ban Renegade from being played online and being sold in the First Decade?

Because if they ban everything thats "corrupts" a persons mind, you wont have TV, Radio, Games, Computers. WOW I see the old caveman days coming back if we do things from your point of view.

What was the original topic again?

There is no way to protect kids from acting out their fantasies. The fact that some people are trying to prevent that not only shows a complete lack of common sense, but also a complete lack of responsibility. The only reason they want to "protect" them from books, violent video games, and TV is so they don't have to worry about not giving them proper supervision themselves.

The problem doesn't lie in what is being published; it lies in the parents themselves. If you don't want your kid to read Harry Potter, fine. Do it in your own household, don't try to enforce your beliefs on everybody else.

I will break down what I have to say:

1: Aren't books suppose to put the reader in a fantasy? Yeah, that bitch is a dumbass.

2: "Casting Spells" is 1 of the million things children do to play and have fun.

3: Schools are meant to teach kids how to write, read, add, subtract, etc... Taking away a book kids read is just limiting their learning abilities.

Ug-I really don't beleive this. The scary part about this whole thing is that its probably going to happen! My old middle school just got rid of some Harry Potter books-but some kids pettioned to get them back-and thankfully they did. They also tried banning the book "The Giver" from our the 8th grade curreculum. It really is stupid now how EVERYTHING we read has to have happy ending or a happy message, otherwise we face the worst kind of terrorist-the ANGRY MOTHER kind. It's interesting to read everyone's opinions.

Now we are to blame Christians and others like them for censoring books, playing tag, things of this nature. I guess maybe some of you are too young to remember why things are the way they are today.

PMRC:

Does anyone remember Tipper Gore, Al Gore's wife? Common has to be some liberals here, what good did this woman do for us. Let's see. Ahhh yes she is the one who had warning labels put on music for explicit lyrics. Actually this turned out to be a good thing for the industry because their sales went thru the roof. Still the point is its censorship. Now I don't think she was a bible thumping Christian.

Political Correctness = Censorship

Heres something I found online that explains this very well lol

Quote:Politically Correct Seasons Greetings:

Christmas Thoughts

Please accept with no obligation, implied or implicit our best wishes for an environmentally conscious, socially responsible, low stress, non-addictive, gender neutral, celebration of the winter solstice holiday, practiced within the most enjoyable traditions of the religious persuasion of your choice, or secular practices of your choice, with respect for the religious/secular persuasions and/or traditions of others, or their choice not to practice religious or secular traditions at all ... and a fiscally successful, personally fulfilling, and medically uncomplicated recognition of the onset of the generally accepted calendar year _____, but not without due respect for the calendars of choice of other cultures whose contributions to society have helped make America great, (not to imply that America is necessarily greater than any other country or is the only "AMERICA" in the western hemisphere), and without regard to the race, creed, color, age, physical ability, religious faith, choice of computer platform, or sexual preference of the wishee.

- DISCLAIMER OF WARRANTABILITY -

(By accepting this greeting, you are accepting these terms.

This greeting is subject to clarification or withdrawal. It is freely transferable with no alteration to the original greeting. It implies no promise by the wisher to actually implement any of the wishes for her/himself or others, and is void where prohibited by law, and is revocable at the sole discretion of the wisher. This wish is warranted to perform as expected within the usual application of good tidings for a period of one year, or until the issuance of a subsequent holiday greeting, whichever comes first, and warranty is limited to replacement of this wish or issuance of a new wish at the sole discretion of the wisher.)

I could go on, but i got games to play Censorship is censorship and I for one being a Christian do not believe in censorship. Extremist on the left or right is wrong.

The lady who wants to ban the Harry Potter books because it promotes fantasy. I wonder if "Santa" brings her kids presents.

Just to comment about what darknight brought up about warning labels.

I see no problem with warning about what something may contain. That's not censorship, as nothing is being prevented from being distributed. If this person wanted to start a book version of the ESRB (to use something we're all familiar with), I would have no problem. Outright banning, though, I do.

I like the V-chips on TVs. They tell you what is basically included in the programs that you're watching. However, I think with the V-chip, any other censoring should be removed. If you're a parent and don't want your children seeing that, block it with the options on your TVs. If you don't have that, don't let your children watch TV unless you can be there to supervise. It won't kill the kid to not watch TV. If you don't want to see that language or even nudity, don't watch it. You're obviously not a child, and should be responsible enough to choose not to watch something you dislike or find offensive.

Censorship just gives the government control, and that's annoying, too. I mean, if we let the government control what we watch or do, what's next? Are we going to let them wipe our butts after we go to the bathroom?

Books are suppose to put you in a fantasy, that's why you read it in the first place. This lady is obviously an obese 43 year old with a mentally challenged child.
