My mom's birthday is on 9/11.
Damn those Muslim terrorist bastards for ruining my mom's birthday with their Islamic beliefs. That makes me so mad, I just want to blow up everyone in any country that contains a majority of Muslims!

South Park made a new episode saying that anyone that believes the terrorist attacks on 9/11 weren't caused by freedom-hating Muslims is "retarded", using unlikeable characters such as Cartman as an example, so now all of their mindless, non-thinking viewers are going to believe that 9/11's roots surely do boil down to some lowlife bearded guys that live in a cave, and that anyone that believes otherwise is indeed "retarded". I love idiots! I wish I was one.
They talk about 9/11 conspiracies as if it was some new fad, but people have been questioning and researching 9/11 for years. Not that you have to agree with them, hell no. It's so much easier to ignore politics and believe whatever politicians on television say.
That's what Cool Guy does! You want to be cool, don't you? Then follow Cool Guy's lead, or be forced to be uncool forever!

What's interesting is that South Park is generally fairly CONSERVATIVE, so their statement about talking about conspiriacy theories isn't to suggest that they're true, but to laugh at people who believe in them. You really don't get South Park's satire, do you?

Wow, you guys clearly didn't watch that episode. I watched the whole thing, so I'd have an awful lot more understanding, wouldn't I. I watch South Park on a regular basis.

No, of course they don't. I watch them on every day that a new episode is on. Are you stupid? Did you not read my post? I watched the episode of South Park, and it's very obvious what they mean. In fact, I don't need to make a point, because my first post is my point, and if you watched the episode yourself, you'd get it, and you wouldn't have to be here looking stupid trying to prove some invalid point.

Umm... okay, so I read your first post wrong. The way you worded it was confusing. Anyways...

I think anybody who decides that it wasn't terrorist organizations that carried out the attacks on 9/11 is a fucking idiot. While I agree that the U.S. government may have intentionally let the attacks happen; they surely weren't orchestrated by the government.

Conspiracies are just a form of liberal propaganda. If they can somehow blame the government for it other than their neglegence, then they can sway some idiots to their side.

HA! Oh, dude, you're hilarious.
"Liberals". Oh, yeah. They're evil, misleading, freedom-hating terrorists, they are. That must be why they don't have a public news station of their own, while all of the news stations like Fox pin everything wrong with the United States on Democrats, "liberals", "ultra-liberals", "the left", "lefties", and Bill Clinton.
The liberal media doesn't do shit. It's so easy to blame Democrats for everything, because they're too wimpy to protest the lies being thrown on them, even though they never do ANYTHING.
It's so much nicer to believe that everything that makes the world a perfect place where nothing bad ever happens is the "truth", and that people that know how much the world sucks and all of the bad shit people do are just pessimistic "fucking idiots".

Nah, I don't believe that they're evil or freedom-hating, or even misleading. It's just politics, both sides have their agenda.

What better way to destroy absolute trust in Republicans than to have "convincing" theories about the government actually the ones behind 9/11? If they can continue to instill distrust in the Republicans, Democrats gain the trust of the public and win both houses, and possibly the presidency.

Liberals are the ones you want to pin for thinking that there's a chance for a perfect society. That's just unrealistic. Take, for example, Socialistic ideas of equal pay, and liberal ideas of "tolerance". It's just not going to happen. Differences of opinions and ideas prevents it, yet liberals keep contending that this world would be better if we just had "tolerance". That idea doesn't exist in the real world.

Democrats don't pin anything on Republicans. Maybe hippies do, but not the REAL politicians. They want the world to suck less ass, and for the Government to not be as corrupt as it is. They would love to begin making changes ASAP, but they can't because of their current position. Though, if Democrats were in power, they'd end up being just as corrupt as the people already in power, but for now, they can make themselves look like the goodguys by being better than the current Government (since they can't influence anything).
I never see the Democrats saying anything bad about the Republican party. Yes, they might say something about a Republican (and it will never be straight-up trash talk like you'd get from Bill O'Reilly), but that's all coincidence, as whoever they're talking about doesn't necessarilly have to be a Republican, they just happen to be.
Every time I turn on the TV, people are talking crap about the Democrats, or "liberals", but it's never the other way around. Even on left-wing radio stations, the Democrats won't talk smack about the Republicans.

I mean, Fox news is trying to say that Mark Foley's pedophile tendancies could've been stopped by the Democrats, and that it's all their fault, even though Foley was a Republican working under other Republicans.

I'm not saying one side is better than the other. Power can easily corrupt anyone. In these modern times, you can talk crap about someone on television all you want, as long as citizens are convinced you're right and your opponent is left. The United States, whether it does bad stuff to its own/other people or not, is still one kickass country, along with its first-world cousins, such as the UK.
I'd much rather live in the US than the countries it's blowing up, anyway, I'll tell you that.

...because we all know that the world consists only of absolutes and polar opposites. Because we all know that the only two viewpoints that exist are the Republican and Democrat party lines. Because surely whomever disagrees with your views must by necessity hold the exact opposite views, because there can't possibly be anything in between.

And, of course, because nobody who doesn't agree with you to a T could possibly have anything valid to say.

Don't be a douche.

Jebus christ.

Matt and Trey are the creators of South Park...

Go watch Hannibal the Musical, Orgasmo, Team America or SOUTH PARK the movie.

EDIT:

For someone that watched south park you sure did miss their names at the start of every episode for 10 seasons.

EDIT2:

Oh, or Basketball

Why should I give a shit who they are? So they made South Park. There's no law saying I need to know such useless information as the creators' names.

I'd really rather not waste my time watching crappy movies.
So you're saying, if I go watch basketball, I'll meet Matt and Trey at the game? Wow, I really don't care, but hey, there's a goal for you, if you'd be so pleased!

What game? Im saying that you obviously dont know the styles of matt and trey if you never even heard of them or seen their live action films.

For instance, Hannibal the Cannibal was filmed while they were in film school together. You can see alot of the jokes use in South park in live action.

Another example, did someone piss in your corn flakes dude? Actually, im willing to bet they pinched a FAT load into your milk or something...like fuck.
Were you born under a rock and just climb out?
EVERYONE knows Trey and MAtt, and if you dont, then well. You suck.
South Park, Is a decent comedy, the movie was jokes.
Baseketball was a hilarious comedy.

You really gotta stop being a jackass and realize, that if you keep acitng like you do, no one will give two shits about what you got to say.

What is all of that?
You're an idiot. But, I'm not just saying that without anything to back it up with. I have reasons, and they are as follows:
I don't have to know who Matt and Trey are. I don't give a shit about their films, or their personal lives, or any of that retarded crap. They're just two humans that don't influence anything, except perhaps the lives of losers like yourself. I can't imagine why you'd want me care about Matt and Trey, or know who they are, seeing as how they mean nothing to me, and they've never done anything for me. Have they ever done anything for you? No, of course not. So why do I have to care about their existence?
I don't have any obligation to give a damn about anything they or any other person "everyone knows" does or makes or eats or dumps in the toilet.
This topic was about a stupid episode they made in their stupid show that would make stupid people stupidly think that stupid things were true like the stupid people they are. You get me? No, of course you don't, because you weren't paying attention. Maybe you should read it all again until you actually get it.

I'm not sure why I even made this topic. Nobody in this part of the forum has the intellectual capacity to understand anything beyond the easiest, simplest, nicest things that they're told, and they refuse to believe anything else that makes the world the shitty, corrupt place it really is, things that actually require them to think for themselves. I'm really just wasting my time in this Politics/Hot Issues forum, since you dudes are pretty much all exactly alike with your close-mindedness, useless information and miscellaneous bullcrap.

That was the most random reply ive ever heard of. Did i once say, that you HAVE to know about Matt and Trey? I said if you dont, you suck.

Or, if you wanna get technical. I said EVERYONE knows them two. I never once said that YOU had to know them.

So you dont know them, big fucking whoop. Move on with your life.

It wasn't random, you're just too stupid to understand fully formed sentences.

Saying that if I don't know them means that I suck is saying that I have to know them in order to not suck, but I don't give a shit what you think sucks or not, since you're such an immense bag of twats, so I will indeed continue not knowing them, or seeing their films, or wasting my life on anything they've created, and you can pretend that, in your little world where everything is the way you want it to be, I somehow suck because of such.

Bradus

The reason I said that was because I was trusting you knew who made South park, Oviously Not..

Matt and Trey Parker have a style were they "skit" or joke about ANYTHING that move's...

You obviously took that episode the wrong way...

In short:

South Park is great. "Blame Canada" is just as good. Something always happens to Kenny, be it South Park or Baseketball.
And Broadus takes things far too seriously (which is what is really wrong with the world today)

Isn't it great how one person can ignore an entire thread of people proving him wrong and still think they are right?
