BRenBot does not require a disk to load.. there's not even any code related to cd drives or such...

something to do with the perl engine, or maybe par.exe?

par.exe is just the packing tool we use for BRenBot, it's basically a sort of zip-file system, nothing to do with CD's.

As for the perl engine, I don't think the perl engine even supports reading from CD's natively...

NR's installer doesnt use a CD, yet if you delete some files, then it asks you to insert a disc, so it most likely just means missing files

What version of windows are you running, and which version of brenbot?
