I was playing on a coo-op server when I decided to cover one of my team mates with remote C4. He then went up against I believe it was a NOD solder bot and still received damage. Does this offer any protection AT ALL?

It might.. But I have a feeling it doesn't for bots. I've had times where some douche comes with c4 and I had a 500 or something and it misses sometimes. Bots are different because they have aimbots, or something

They perhaps they always shot for the head or chest, I don't believe that I covered those places....

Does anybody have a picture of a fully covered character with remote C4?

would be funny such a remote-armour (but... if you think... hiding yourself between C4 against bullets sounds stupid)

I remember doing that to an SBH in my non-dedi serv a few months ago, it was fun seeing a dude walking around made out of remote C4.

the bit about c4 armour....well cmon, its called friendly fire.

it even exist in real.....errrrr.....maybe not.

having fuel tanks on the side of nod apc's is even crazier.
