If you've clicked this, I've gotten your attention with that delicious farce of a title to bitch about some of the sleaziest, cum drenched, undignified ass pirates out there. I'm talking about, of course, selfish cheating sleazebags.

I was out with a couple of my buddies last night. We decided to go to a Best Buy in one of the neighbouring cities to get the three of us a Wii. Turns out they were getting a shipment this very morning, so it was gonna be a camp out in the jeep. Anyway, we arrive at Best Buy around 1am (we actually ended up going to two, spanning two towns) and are stuck at the end of this giant line. The sign in the front said there were 27 Wiis arriving, and we were, in theory, the 24rd, 25th, and 26th people in line. I'll tell you how I knew this in a moment. Anyway, just after us about 10 minutes later this mother and her ten year old kid line up behind us. Virtually unprepared for the Canadian december night. They ended up taking turns sitting in their car while the other sat in line in the cold. Anyway, this guy comes up around 3:30am or so, stands at the back of the line with us and decides to go walk up to the front to take a look at what's going on up there. He comes back to us a few minutes later asking us if we'd be nice enough to hold his spot for him in the back while he was talking with his friends who evidently were up in front. Whatever, we're not jerks so we happily obliged to do so.

The night goes on slowly, and one of the graveyard shifters inside comes out and hands out a clipboard for us to put our names on. No point in leaving 28 poor folks out in the cold if there are only 27 Wiis right? This would be later used to hand out these receipts with an order later in the morning. Anyway, this is the biggest farce of asspiracy I've seen in a LONG while. The douchebag who went to go talk to his friends (in theory, #28 himself), decided to write his name down "inadvertently" on the clip board and send it back. Now, if he incidently forgot that he was cutting in line in front of a 10 year old kid sitting in the cold, and fixed the problem like a man there would be no story. Instead, this dirty minge strolled back to the end of the line (where a new gaggle of people formed) and pretended to be just an unlucky fuck who didn't get his name on the sheet before going back to his friends. The fatty behind him practically broke into tears because he was just barely out of the quota. He obviously went home. Well, we're writing our names down and we have been watching this dude the whole time and are in full knowledge of his cutting in line. We end up writing our names down and suddenly I'm #27-- the last Wii. Well, that was a pretty shitty thing to have to do to someone; tell them that they lose and I got the last one. I ended up giving my Wii to the folks behind me. God forbid a grown man wait another week or two for a kid to get a christmas gift he obviously didn't get last week.

If only the story ended there. I was waiting in the jeep in the morning for my buddies to leave the store, and el cunto is standing outside, with the bill that is his golden willy wonka ticket to getting a system, NOT buying one. The fucker is scalping his ticket right outside.

If Jesus didn't invent Tim Hortons coffee, I don't know what physical infliction I'd cause to this abortion survivor. I hate people.

PS: I'm really really sorry if you were expecting bukakke tubgirl. Google it, it's probably there in some capacity.

That's garbage, you should have spilled your coffee on his receipt, or at least have scratched his name out on the clipboard.

I got kind of lucky with mine, no lines or anything. This EBGames that was a little out of the way, not too close to any malls or major outlets, got a shipment of 9 in at 11:00. I strolled down at 11:30 and was in and out within 3 minutes with my Wii

My style would have been to take his ticket off him. Rip it up in front of him.

Then report him immediately to the store staff, whilst pointing out what he had done.

What a slice of shit. You should have just walked up to him, kicked him int a 'nads and tore up his ticket. That, or give it to someone more deserving.

I was lucky to get my Wii, I was at Wal-Mart when all of a sudden I saw the woman stacking up

Wii consoles from out of a shipment box, fuck yeah!

Wow. You were good to give the ticket to the kid. You probably should have unscrewed the valves on his tires though. A tow would immediately negate his Wii profits. At all the stores out here you can't transfer ownership of those little tickets.

Why didn't you say something up front when he signed? Make a big stink out of it in front of everyone -- I'm sure with so many witnesses around that he would have easily been off the list.

Nonetheless, I would have followed him home and torched his house.

World is filled with assholes, even though you were nice enough to give your Nintendo Wii to someone else, why not just open your mouth? Honestly, people like that shouldn't deserve one at all, and you let it through. You should have told the employees, also, you probably weren't the only one who noticed that.

But all in all, christmas is for giving, right?

Hmm the lengths humans go to buy a shitty console which costs as much as a decent PC which can't be upgraded and gonna be outdated the year or two after.

Computers lack the same interactivity as the Wiis do, and $200 is the same price as a fairly decent GPU.

year or two after.

you can buy joysticks for a computer that simulate the Wii.

also a PC can be upgraded. and don't go obsolete as fast.

although computers are alot more expensive.

Not the greatest example to use since Wii's graphics blow.

Graphics, graphics, graphics.

I don't give a flying fuck if the Wii does not have super photorealistic graphics, it's still fun to play.

Look at Renegade, I still prefer it over most new PC games even though there are plenty that make Renegade look like shit.

My point is that a "decent PC" costs 4x the Wii.
