I don't possibly see how that could be relevant to your flame-war between you and Troop.
Communities take time to grow, period.

Not to mention he's totally missed the target with that arrow...

(1) That's the old TRPM forum when they were a part of the Tsunami Gaming network.

(2) They are no longer a member of the Tsunami Gaming network.

(3) All Tsunami Gaming network sites share the same login information, thus they share memberlist statistics.

Summary: Thats the number of users on the Tsunami Gaming network forums as of this minute, and not on their forum. They have closer to 20 or so users (between previous members of their clan and visitors to their site/forums) which can be uniquely registered as "their own".

181 members to 187 posts?

How long has the site been running?

Copyright is 2001 and the other date is 2005.

If its a new site then you should still reasonably expect more posts per head. Other than the usual introductory post stating "Hi, I am.....".

In your defence! You have what others dont, "a forum". Jealousy will always try to bring you down. Stand firm in your convictions and beliefs.

It is better to have failed trying than never to have tried at all. keep up the good efforts.

Only certain people can get away with posts such as these because they add wit and intelligence in them as well as some humour. You on the other hand just can't. I am also surprised at the lack of pointless (but sometimes fractionally funny) images you usually see in these topics.

People can be very cruel with images. I hated those "man wearing a dress" images. Its not really what i would expect from adults. weather he deserved it or not, its how 12 year olds behave.
