If your talking from Gmax point of view you just go into the W3d tools, which is the icon that has the hammer on it, then enable hide, 2 sided and all the collision settings.

I am not sure what object or script you would use if it was done soley in level edit on the other hand.

You shouldn't criticize without knowing what he wants to do.

Well, seeing it as how invisible walls are commonly known as "cheats" or "hacks" I would say he is looking for them.. Well, atleast in my own opinion.

Create your object, go into w3d settings and select "hide" and "physical" if you want it to block both characters and vehicles, if you want it to only block vehicles un-check physical and check "vehicle"

Make sure the front side of the face, is facing towards the direction that vehicles will hit it, otherwise, they will get stuck in it.
