i am having real problems getting online with renegade, heres what is happening. fisrt of all, i click on westwood online, then multiplayer internet, then finnaly advanced game settings. however, this is where my problem is:

i go to create a new account, select a username+password then click new account. however is says "page failed to load or is invalid". someone said do not click the create account option becasue thats what will happen, however there isnt anything else to select? now i asked someone on here and they said select connect to XWIS from the multiplayer internet menu. there isnt an option to selcet that thought from the game menu, where am i going wrong?

When u click 'advanced game listings' it should show you a box where you can enter a username and password. Enter the username of your choice and a 8 letters long password and log in. If the username is not taken, you will get a welcome message and see the list. You will now own this username. You can make up to 9 usernames like this.

If the username is taken, you will get an empty list (no servers). Just try again with a different nick.

You do not go to 'create new account', you just log in with the name and pass u want. If it doesn't exist, it will automatically register it for you.

It worked in the past. ready for history lesson?

Until last year, WOL was actually WOL. It was hosted by EA and you need to create an account through a webpage or through the 'new account' option. That 'new account' option didn't have any of the image files it needed either because EA must have lost them some day, donno.

Anyway, EA gave control over WOL over to strike team who put their WOL clone, xwis, on it. This wol clone doesn't need the account registration page anymore but works like explained above.

Open RenGuard, and launch Renegade. Log in to WOL. Close Renegade and RenGuard. Open RenGuard. ??? Profit.

TruPlaya you create a nick name then make an 8 digit password and click "login" i had the same problem too if login is not highlighted try a different name or pass and if it brings u back probably means someone already has ur name or pass so type a new one and try it should work for u just as for me.

That means someone already has that name registered or you have registered it before but don't remember the password. You have to choose another name, or remember the password if you registered it.

i'm having the same problem.

so i'm trying to log in.

-I fill in my nick
-I fill in my pass

as you can see in the attached picture. I can not click the log in button. what do I need to do?
