[14:43] RenGuard is downloading an important update for your Renegade.. Please hold.
when my renguard comes up, this message appears, after i am connected, it doesnt seem to affect anything, but i was wondering if i could just manually download this update, since i waited for about ten minutes and it didnt do anything

You can ignore it, it is a message due to the beta testing of the new, enhanced RG.

After digging about the MS site, this error appears to be bought on by temp files.

Start > My Computer > Right Click on "Hard Disk" or whatever you have called your system disk > Porperties > General Tab > "Disk Cleanup"

It will start to scan your Hard Drive, unless you have a lot of data, this shouldn't take long, it then presents you with a window
On the Disk Cleanup window;

Ensure "Downloaded Program Files" And "Temporary Internet Files" are checked, decheck anything else, and then press the "Ok" button. When this has finished, reboot your PC, and try running the application again.

If this doesn't work, say so.

Is your PC brand new and shiny? (lol)

Start > Run > DxDiag

It will collect information about your PC (nothing identifiable, just how much RAM, what processor etc)

When it is done (there's a green progress bar), click on "Save All Information" and save it somewhere where you can get at it.

Attach it to your next post by Pressing "Browse" (A window will appear), finding the file and then clicking on "Open" (on the window) And then pressing "Upload File" (On the posting page)

Thanks
(As he's running XP Pro SP2 it is possible he's using a 64 it edition)

P.s - Please stop PMing me your replies to this topic! lol
