I have been to florida and paris and have taken food and drink in no problem. Drinking water is also provided free of charge there.

lol Those Victoria's Secret Garden perfume bottles with dyed Everclear instead held by some girl friend.

Hrm..."Grain alcohol scent."

Just one 8oz bottle would be enough for me.

8oz of Everclear

= 5.33 shots of 180-proof liquor

= 12 shots of 80-proof proof liquor

I could also possibly convince a teacher to take in a bottle of "water" for me.

Next step: How to smuggle purified cocaine past the drug dog. =P

Wear a blazer and keep it in the inner pocket :/ .Wear a jacket and cut a hole on the inside and put it inside the jacket. Or find some old tech that you don't need and unscrew it and take the stuff out then put it in there and screw it back together. Get an old school cell phone lol.

I don't know how strict the security will be; I'm afraid of getting padded down.

From what I've been reading however, it does sound very strict.

The old cellphone idea...I don't know how I can get that to hold alcohol. o_O

And, I fucked, Everclear is 190-proof.

z310 wrote on Thu, 05 April 2007 22:19 I don't know how strict the security will be; I'm afraid of getting padded down.

Just gotta put it somewhere I won't get padded down. And it can't be beer: 12 bottles worth in a zip-lock bags wouldn't work out too well.

I can put Everclear in bags like that and place them in various places where I won't get padded, like my shoes (make them look like they're "stuffed").

But I like the perfume idea the most.

I'm out of Vicodin and I can't get anymore or anything of the sort (Oxycontin, etc.), as nobody fucking has 'em and I can't go to Mexico to get some.

Order from an out-of-country dealer that doesn't require a prescription? I can't find one.

I was thinking poppin' enough DXM to be in a dreamy-like state while I was there, but I don't like the whole idea of possible permanent brain damage (Onley's Lesions) or the long-term damage from that (reduction of neurotransmitters).

I can't believe that the purpose of this topic is to figure out how to stumble through disneyworld in a drug-induced haze. I never got to go on a vacation as a kid, or ever. I've never been to disneyworld, or any other theme park, or any "vacation" to speak of.

I'm just saying I sure wish I had a chance of having a good memory of some place like disneyworld, and I mean a memory of the sights, sounds, the fun of the actual event. Not some acid flashback haze of drooling on myself while I sat on a bench watching the blur of colors and muffled sounds.

You can get a buzz anytime, and guess what, they all feel the same, so pull your head out of the sand and enjoy the experience for what it is, you can always get wasted afterwards.

You only get one chance of making a good memory...I lost that chance by not even getting to go, I'd hate to see you screw yours up.

Because, you don't know what your life is going to bring. You could die in a car crash tomorrow (whether or not you abuse drugs and alcohol) or you could meet someone wonderful who changes your life. Then you have children and your drug use catches up with you and you die at 45, missing out on your children and grandchildren's lives because you just HAD to get high when you were in your formative years.

Yeah, you could die in a car crash or you could take exquisite care of yourself and die of a heart attack at 37. But, only a retard would explicitly damage their delicate organs and brain cells for a short-term high. There are much safer ways to get a high... an orgasm, accomplishing a goal, helping others, being in love, being successful in your career so you can buy expensive toys and gadgets... spending your youth seeing how badly you can trash your liver and brain is a waste of time and a ridiculously poor investment in the rest of your life.

- People who need their high harass innocent people and beg for their money. And people like me will give them money in the fear that they will take my money by force if I don't.

It's a poor choice, but it's still a choice. I wouldn't go as far as saying that they're retarded because I've known a few intelligent people to use recreational drugs. I don't abuse drugs sick-like. I'm a responsible, moderate user. Don't be so damn pessimistic jumping to conclusions like that.

I don't plan on having kids either.

Moreover, even if I did absolutely abuse drugs there shouldn't be a problem; it's my life and I should have the right. Drug use doesn't directly cause others' rights being infringed on, and that should be recognized more.

I don't care to argue the semantics of my use of the word "retarded". You can't argue that people who rely on chemical induction of happiness, euphoria, or relaxation are lesser, weaker people than those who have the strength and presence of mind to find natural happiness and highs. Your brain and your body are a wonderful gift and to abuse it for a pathetic substitute for happiness is just pathetic.

You may not PLAN on having kids, but you don't know that you won't. You could meet someone tomorrow who changes your life and makes you want a different future for yourself.

As I said before, your drug use CAN and probably DOES affect other people. Even to the most minor of affects, if you get drunk at Disney World and act like a typical drunk kid, then the sober people around you will have less fun because they have to deal with you acting like a retard. Whether it's because a ride operator has to hold the ride for you to get off or on, or stop you from doing something stupid that endangers your safety, or when you puke on someone's shoe or lap or they see the pile of puke you left on the sidewalk and get sick themselves... you affect the people around you.

And you just naturally think that's how I would be? I'm never like that--ever--when I drink. And I especially won't be at Disneyland as it's too selfish and it would probably get me caught.

Responsibility.

Crimson wrote on Sat, 07 April 2007 06:21Well, I just had my weekly poker game tonight and this chick who's the girlfriend of a regular player got drunk and annoyed the shit out of everyone. Her alcohol abuse affected all of us in her company.

CrimsonAs I said before, your drug use CAN and probably DOES affect other people. Even to the most minor of affects, if you get drunk at Disney World and act like a typical drunk kid, then the sober people around you will have less fun because they have to deal with you acting like a retard. Whether it's because a ride operator has to hold the ride for you to get off or on, or stop you from doing something stupid that endangers your safety, or when you puke on someone's shoe or lap or they see the pile of puke you left on the sidewalk and get sick themselves... you affect the people around you.

it's all true. I live in a city where all of this is quite commonplace in nightlife. now, i don't think there is such a thing as a recreational drug, nor is there such a thing as a responsible drugs user. taking a single unprescribed drug automatically makes you irresponsible of your own body. again, just my opinion.

now, i think most of us don't actually intend to get so bad as to start all the annoying practises, e.g. shout so loudly at mates who are only 5 feet away that people in africa can hear you, start fights, hit on girls who make it clear they aren't interested at all, leave the club and go home and puke all over the place. I know many people go out to get wasted, though, and those are the selfish ones who have total disregard for others' enjoyment. The rest of us just get drinks and enjoy ourselves.

I don't mean to digress, but this is a subject that interests me:

One thing i've noticed is that some of the practises people do when drunk, that you'd probably pass off as forgivable drunken stupors, do in fact reflect that person's personality. People who become really annoying, start banging into people and shouting their heads off, tend to be unrespectable people that you wouldn't want to meet when sober anyway. You'd rarely see a respectable person with that much alcohol in them do most of these things; they'd keep to themselves, or just realise they've had too much and go home to sleep it off.

I suppose this is in defense of z310 saying he wouldn't start annoying everyone if he was drunk or doped up on some drug; believe me i've had my experiences with drunkin idiots and i've came to hate city nightlife because of them. Anyhoo, back on topic!..

I was talking to Flyingfox about this earlier today, and it made me decide to write a follow-up for any of you that are curious:

The security was nothing. I could of walked in with a gun in my pants. It was a pocket check, a noninvasive pat down the sides of my body and a check at my collar and ankles.

I didn't try to bring anything in. I figured that was the wisest choice. Friends of mine brought in weed and blazed it on rides, and another took MDMA right before he entered the park. Also lots of people went high, drunk or both.

It was a horrible night. I should of taped a flask full of Bacardi 151 to my chest or something. Thanks to some circumstances, I kicked it with and odd number of people I didn't want to. The liquor would of loosened me up and made the trip somewhat decent.

Also, due to my stupid school's negligence I lost my DAP. I tried talking to administrators, but one claimed that "bringing such items was not allowed" - which is a lie - so I gave up.

I've seen all the kids that liked to drink all the time grow up, I went to school with them..Now they ring up my gas at Texaco.

"Oh hey John, wanna let me "hold" 5" <- Yes quotes within quotes. Also time seems to have stopped for these people. They always talk about stuff l/they did in high school like it's the only thing they have thought about for the last 3 years.

Best thing to do is stay off the stuff, go to college and wait until you've made it in the world before you start trying to kill off ol'liver and smoking up the doob's.

I hate to see people go that way. Including you. It will always amaze me that people willingly force themselves to become ditch diggers

One last thing - To see what I mean talk to this guy Idjit626 on AIM...it's scared straight in its greatest form.

EDIT in accordance to your edit: It very well can if I was in any kind of proximity to you or if you drive that way.

Thats pathetic that you need various substances to "loosen up". What a waste of space you are.

Make your own enjoyment when sober and live to remember the joys of it for years to come.

As for the emotion thats talked about in the above comments!! You are as cold as ice in comparison to the sober ones behind you. They are living life to its fullest.

WTF were you on if its not alcohol? You look stoned and braindead. I bet you can only say....doh!!! I was on the ride.

And how does needing drugs to loosen up make me a waste of space?

The people behind me were in a group of fucking retards that couldn't mind space. They ran into me, and two other friends of mine 300+ fucking times. I was seriously going to deck one of them.

Mate I'm not going to tell you how to live your life but you don't want to wind up on the jerry springer show with your parents telling the whole world you are a drug addict and they want you off of it...or worse, jobless and broken. I'm sure you are smart enough to know what's abuse and very occasional drug taking (not that I have ever took drugs except cannubis a few times) which even then you shouldn't do.

Still this topic is about disneyland not drug abuse...funny how those 2 things get connected isn't it? you'd think the subject of disneyland would be a million miles away from drug taking but nope. what has this world come to, eh.
