They say they are wanted to make a new internets! NO! The internets are fine how they are!
(could use a spell checker tho but firefox has that)

What dose the internet not have that we want? There is porn, flash games, porn, instant messaging, porn, online video games, did I mention porn? Why would you change that!?!?!?!?!?!?!?!?!?

They might be adding a Anti-Retard blocker for some on-line games.

And most possibly forums, too!

That's stupid, Just because a book said Jesus is real you believe it?

It would cost too much money, too much time and too meny people would be pissed. Think about it.

No, it definitely will happen. I'm sure it'll be a long time before it does, but when it does go through I think it will be apparent that they're doing the right thing.

Same here, it isnt a bad thing, because I think that things will get more efficient that way, and it will not make our current internet go away, it will just gradually be moved to the new internet.

I welcome an internet designed from the ground up with, among other things, online gaming and large file transfers in mind.

Think of the size of files that had to be transferred when the Internet was designed, think of the size now, and think of the size in 20 years. Online gaming was spawned by the Internet may years after it was designed, so obviously it was no where near their minds when it was designed.

If they rebuild the internet, I am sure they will secretly make a highly innovative "trace" feature to monitor what everyone is doing.

That's what web proxies are for.

That's what web proxies are for.

Proxies could become useless if a proper trace mechanism was introduced... think of Uplink. Given law enforcements wants, it's not too unrealistic, even if it is a bad idea for privacy.

Can they make it so you have to have an intelligent license to operate the internet this time around?

That may be true but people are bound to find and exploit flaws in the new service, it's what they live for.
