Im not sure if this is the correct forum do tell this... but anyways...

I just found my old renegade game and i was like "hey..ill give it a try" so i downloaded it and pressed the multiplayer online button... i didnt reamember my old name or password so i pressed "create new" button... it said... loading.....loading and then it says this site is not available or it does not exist....

what can i do? is there any way to create a new account?
plz tell me how

There's a new system in place to create names. EA transferred the ownership of the servers to XWIS. All you have to do know (others correct me if I'm wrong) is go to log in on Renegade, enter a desired username and password, and if the username isn't already taken, you'll be signed in, and that username/password will be yours.

IF renegade wont autoforward, go to their forums and look for the xwis forwarding tool, it changes some settings and sets renegade to look for xwis now, I used to use Gamespy until my friends emailed me the tool, now I can see alot more servers and all.

IIRC you cant click the login button unless your password is 8 characters long anyway.
