I have been inactive for a month (due to having very little free time for almost the entire month of June), but I thought about this for the whole length and have come to my decision. I have decided to resign from this position. I have lost all of the interest that was once there. I feel that I have done the best I could, but I want to move on to something else.

Thank you everyone for electing me. Also, thank you Crimson for the opportunity (and for putting up with me).

Hey icedog.

You've been here on this forum for a long time, so I just wanted to say thanks for your service here on these forums. Good luck on whatever happens next.

I can't believe icedog is resigning...was always the nicest mod for reasons I will keep to myself.

Anyway, my best wishes to you!

PS: OMFG! Don't turn this thread into a "vote for me" bullshit....I am sure that will come later.

You did a very good job as moderator. It's a pity you're leaving.

Will you still be sticking around the forums in a non-moderation capacity, or are you planning to leave completely? (We all know/hope that if you do you will be back a few months down the line, renegade is too addictive to leave forever!)
