Simply put, I like having my ringtones be favorite songs of mine. However, with Sprint having the ringtones expire after 90 days, I find that to be too expensive for my taste.

I was bored today, and I stumbled upon a tutorial on how to create your own. Unfortunately, the program it tells me to use won't work with my phone.

Anyways, from there I was Googling and I found a site that lets you upload and send your own custom ringtones to your phone.

Edit: I know, this sounds like an advertisement, but I figured that some of you would like music ringtones, but didn't want to pay the charges would enjoy this free method of getting what you want.

I actually ended up using what the site suggested which was WavePad (didn't see it at first) and it ended up working fine, but thanks for the suggestions.

Edit: Ended up not working for me. oh well

Download audacity, i use it to make ringtones, works very very good <http://audacity.sourceforge.net/>

it's free

make sure you download the mp3 editing file too, or else you cant edit mp3's...you can cut, turn down/up volume, mix music....I lvoe this program.

1. Your phone is an LG enV, you idiot.
 2. Your phone uses BREW, not Java, and finding BREW games is next to impossible, as you can usually only get them through your provider.
 3. Look for your own damn self.
 4. This thread isn't for damn cell phone games.
