Hey,

Every time I edit a vehicles or buildings, And use these settings it works fine, Every time I try to export a character skin using these settings, It's a complete fail, Does anyone know the options I need to use to export a character skin?

Here's the settings I'm using..

And here's the outcome:

ARG!! Can someone point out what I'm doing wrong please? Them settings work perfectly with Building textures and Vehicles!

With the exception of a few special cases, I always used the top option for no alpha. Black textures usually means the alpha settings are wrong.

I think it's my first topic for asking a skinning question.

@Chuck: Thank you Chuck, I hope you don't go kung-fu on my ass and beat the living hell outa' me.

EDIT: Didn't work Chuck. :!<

Try DXT3 or DXT5 for the sbh, every other soldier besides the chemsprayer is DXT1 I think.

*shrugs* I followed this skin guide.

http://www.cncden.com/renegade\_skin\_tut.shtml

It says to disable alpha. What exactly will that change? I've edited a few skins saving them that way and saw no noticable difference. It's worked for every skin without problem, and when one did go black, I used DXT5 and it worked (I never mentioned to try DXT5 in this case because I thought the SBH wasn't one of the special ones that needed it, since the stank doesn't).

Jesus Christ, Click anywhere on that site and a pop up appears!

I'm not sure what it would change myself..

Alex, when you open a skin in PS or Gimp or w/e you use. Go to channels and see if there is an alpha channel. If there isn't then don't use alpha options, if there is, then do.

The SBH, chem trooper, and mutant raveshaw all have special things that require DXT5 or DXT3(I forgot ).
