I got 15kbps the first 5 minutes, then i canceled it, I'll just download it next week like I did with 1.08 for cnc3, everyone is downloading it at the same time rushing to get it so it is obviously slow, i bet by next week the download speed will be 100kbps for everyone or higher just because theres less people downloading it, but if you leave it alone for 2-3 hours i'm sure it would get done today.

Nope, EA purposely capped the download speed.

But.. I have 100kbps download speed now, thanks to some tools!

Problem with hamachi is it's like IRC sort of, people sit in there and leave it on even though they may be not at their keyboard, while in the standard cnc server/player listing, usually they are at the keyboard.

Does this have normal standard multiplayer? or is hamachi the only answer.

You can't play multiplayer in a "normal standard" way - you have to replace at least one file. There's the bumped thread here, the single-file version and a link to the XWIS guide here, and the old, full version SK uploaded here.

Wow, awesome.

Command and Conquer was the whole reason why I got into gaming.

Main reason why I got a play station to play the game.

Then when I got an PC, it was just to play Command and Conquer.

Never played the first version on the PC, will look forward to it, if I can ever get it to work.

Question, are you able to play MP on this?

It's a shitty port (I assume, based on the following), Cider sucks.

BF2142 won't even install and I hear Cider doesn't the kind of performances you'd expect.

*sigh* Having to rely on Windows for PC gaming sucks.

The best maga base I'll ever had was in one of the GDI mission's, I dind't turn off my Play Station for a week and let the Tiberium grow none stop till it covered the entire map, aswell having lot's of big bases and outposts aswell as "guard points" all over the map.

I'll maxed out on every unit too.

Nod, only had a Power Plant left.

Multiplay in C&C was always horribly unbalanced... GDI sucked because the WF was too flimsy, recon bikes would own it. Most top players would hate using GDI for that reason alone. As for Nod, whoever was on the right side of the map automatically won.

Because they want all the young'un's to see what downloads were like back in the '90's, when 33.6 and 56k ruled the day.

If you got 20kbps/second download back then, you were THE Man.

And is there anyway to skip that annoying video that starts when you load it up?

Review:

1)download it from the links posted by jball, its MUCH faster (50kbps vs 500kbps)
2)I just using daemon tools to mount the .iso's and it installed in like 3 seconds.
3)Download that guide on how to install it, because it can really fuck over you directx and video card drivers if you dont follow the intructions exactly, and then read up on how to run it the right way (compatibility stuff)
4)When I first tryed a C&C rts game, I hated it, it was Ra2, and the cut scenes felt dumb, and the gameplay was slow, this game, for some reason the cut scenes are just...good And the gameplay is simple and surprisingly fun. Seems I have been changed from fps only, to the rest of the C&C games, im getting TFD soon and ill see how the rest are like.

Oh, and did I mention, why don't people host some games for C&C95? I did a few times, waiting like 1hour+ no one was on Lets try to get more peps online to have a few games

I didn't care for RA2 or TS at all. RA with Retaliation is the way it was meant to be played. No cartoonist art and unrealistic buildings, just turrets, pillboxes and the need to feed your refineries.

TS was the worst of them all to me. Every five freaking seconds there was a triple missile and that damn seeker droid thing. You have to build concrete everywhere and I would just like to see someone make a real mega base in that thing.
