I've always loved everything about how Valve handled things but does anyone else have a sore ass rim over this Orange Box pre-order? I just had to buy HL2 and Ep1 over again because they will not be offering the black box. They reportedly said that they had issues with retailers.....

Even on steam though? It's steam...they are the retailers. They do allow you to send HL2 and Ep1 to anyone in the world as a free gift but bah to that. Everyone I would give it to already owns HL2 and Ep1 or is someone I hate so much that I would rather gut myself than give them anything other than a quick death. (Talking to you Viking)

The one thing that still is gold is the price. $44 bucks gets you the entire HL2 series and all the upcoming games we have been waiting for.

@ the Viking comment: Its nothing about his post on this forum, it's the conversations we have on messengers.

EDIT:

Might as well use this thread to share our steam list.
(Recently did a clean install)

Yeah, I was just about to pre-order, But I noticed it's the Orange Box only and I already have HL2 and Episode 1.

I think I'm going to have to wait for Episode 2, TF2 and Portals to be a separate package.

WikipediaThe package will be available at retail stores and through Steam (Valve's content delivery system) for direct download. A retail copy of Episode Two will reportedly not be available separately from the packages.[4] Originally a 'Black Box' retail package was to be released, containing only Episode Two, Portal and Team Fortress 2, but this was canceled by Valve in May 2007 due to retailer issues.

Sadly it doesn't seem like they will be doing that and the price of buying any 2 of the 3 is over 44 bucks

While the majority of the forums probably don't give a shit about either of us, I'm absolutely certain that more care what I think over what you think. I may be an asshole, but I usually have a good opinion on most of what I post on. You, on the other hand, have proven to be utterly useless.

Sorry for taking this thread off topic. He annoys me too much.

Valve better let me purchase Episode Two separately. I'm not going to pay money for games that I can't play on my computer just so I can have one that can.

You know, you can buy those games separately. Here's the costs:

Half-Life 2: $29.95
Half-Life 2: Episode One: $19.95
Half-Life 2: Episode Two: $29.95

Portal: $19.95
Team Fortress 2: $29.95

So if you're just after Episode 2, Portal and TF2 It'll cost $79.85 separately. Really, you should just buy the orange box unless of course you are specifically after one of those games in the package. But if you're after games which come over $44.95 combined, you're better off just buying the orange box.

Holy shit.....thats like 498642389462384$ spent on games, and support valve. They make their games too hard to pirate so fuck em, why not use a cracked steam client, get all the games on the list, install and play online which ever game you want? The funny thing is, you even get inhouse beta's the steam team was using, I saw bioshock on the list like 3 weeks ago

Np.

There are quite a few pure servers out there if memory serves me well, many servers have a nice large whitelist though. Obviously blocking textures that could be altered for semi-transparency if not complete.

These might be of use to you then (enable developer console in options -> keyboard -> advanced... -- then press "`") cl_downloadfilter "none"

^ for blocking all downloads

cl_downloadfilter "nosounds"
^ for blocking only sounds, obviously cl_downloadfiter "all"

^ allow all downloads

I keep getting low grav servers and crap like that. So blocking files probably wont work for that situation.

EDIT: I mean it will just kick me out or something.

Sounds are for the "BOOOOO00000MMMMM HEAD SHOT" and "FIRST KILL" stuff, There annoying as hell and you sometimes can't hear footsteps and you die.

Use the " cl_downloadfilter "none" " command, Save some space on your hard drive and hear footsteps.

Ah - then you'll probably want to play at a trusted server.

I know that the TsuGaming server (which I helped to set up) has no more than the default mani plugin sounds and 2 admin models (one for each team).

Address is 74.86.87.167:27015 - there are few players on usually at this time, but only because few players outside of myself ever try to get the server filled (hopefully going to change soon).

As for the being kicked out: if you're supposedly getting a high ping (according to the server), then you can try to rejoin. Otherwise I don't know what else to say about it.

I play on NT, personally I like it because there aren't many mods on the server, and I just like the rules.

I also got the Orange Box yesterday, the only game in there taht I had was HL2 anyway, I'll just go give it to a friednd I guess.

Probably going to happen within the hour (as of 2:12am Eastern).

You can be sure I'll be one of the very first playing.
