@ razor; I don't think that's the Great Wall of China. I know the Wall does not reach any sea...it's in the middle of the Mongolian desert with lots of icy lands to the north. And the Wall is very snakelike in it's curvyness.

Here's a pic of the Wall from space:

It's amazing how camera technology have improved over the decades. Remember the fuzzyness of the Moon missions? Now we get these cool HD pics.

Here it is:

<http://spaceflight.nasa.gov/gallery/>

Good luck as you search over millions of High Definition images!

MOTE: Use the keyword search feature. Every image NASA took of space are in this gallery.

A big round of applause for the Canadarm.

I think the Canada emblem shows up more times than the Red, White and Blue.

I work for NASA, I blur out UFO's with Photoshop and I thought I'd share the 1337 pictures. :]

P.S: I left out a UFO, try and find it.

LOL, Just kidding, Found 'em on another forum, Thought I'd post them.

That is Windows 2000 and it is what most corporations still use.
