Well here is the main thin Super Smash Bros. Brawl is Nintendo, and sonic is Sega (if they are still a company I guess).

I hate the idea, sonic just doesn't fit with the nintendo characters. Same with that snake fellow, does not belong at all.

I think sonic being in the game is kind of stupid, most of the characters in the past series were all 100% made by nintendo, and now they bring in a sega made character just because he was part of nintendo for a while, sega is also with playstation, I dont see jak and daxter in ssb (sega didnt make jak and daxter, but still they are a playstation game, and sega is conencted with playstatkion releasing games here and there.....)

Uuuh, Sega has never been limited to any console besides their own. They're a 3rd party developer and aren't "with" anyone.

Pokemon and Kirby(I think?) aren't Nintendo franchises either yet they've been in SSB since the first one. Sonic fits in fine.

I used to be a huge fan of Sonic back in the day, when we had Sonic 1, 2, 3, and Sonic & Knuckles.

The Sonic in these new games is way too childish, it's like they completely flipped his style upside down. He wasn't meant to be a 4 year olds hero.

I sure hope thats not true. For the Xbox 360 maybe but please, dear God, not for the Wii!!! That's the only one of the three consoles I don't think I'll ever even contemplate getting. It just looks too awkward

I agree with you. They stopped making "good" sonic games after the Adventure games.

My most favorite 3D sonic game, and also my most favorite Sonic game is definitely Adventure 2 Battle. I spent countless hours on that game. Raising Chao, perfecting course runs, collecting rings. That game was just so much fun.... it all went downhill from there, though.

Lucky for us we dont own the wii, their changing it slowly now, the first change was a new message, I forgot what the message said on the test box, then the first commercial change was a silicon fancy controller grip so you have hold of the controller, and if tossed, it cushions the blow on your TV/cat/dog/baby sister.

You don't need to any more. All Wii owners are getting free controller gloves with grips

For everyone who buys one now, you get 1 that comes with the console. But if you bought it when it was released, you just need to put your serial number in, and they send you 1-4 controller gloves at your request for FREE.

I could have sworn I posted this somewhere but I guess not.

I have always been burned by online Nintendo games. They always make exploits and never ever release patches to fix them. They also never have anti-cheat systems in place and anyone using action replay can easily play on their servers ruining any game they wish.

IE: Mario Kart DS, snaking first ruined the game and then after action replay came out people would instantly win a round or have blue flame always on.

Where is our patch for Wii Sports - Bowling? That was broken since day one and nothing has been done about it nearly a year later.

Speaking for Twilight Princess for the wii, your back ward!

No but seriously you are, on the WII they inverted the screen, the left side is actually the right and the right is actually the left. Thats why link is left handed on game cube and right on wii. Also it because really obvious if you have only played game cube version, then get the wii version and you walk around the maps, it takes about to seconds to realize that all the maps are back wards

(because of the inverted screen position). Hope you guys can figure out what I mean, or at least explain it simpler. (Nothing like typing things while being rushed).
