Well for the last 3 months solid, i haven't been able to connect directly through to Xwis from the renegade launcher. It happend pretty sudden when i took a small break from renegade and tried going back online to have it request server list.

  I have checked my firewall exceptions and it all seems fine, i haven't changed anything at all since it was working online so it confusing me as to what i can do to solve this problem.

  I still can connect though if i use the EKT server launcher but that is the only way i have been able to get online since the problem started.

Theres a file somewhere in system32 that belongs to all xwis forwarding, most know where it is, I forget alot since not many people have connection issues. Ask Goztow, he knows,

C:\windows\system32\drivers etc or something like that, a file called "hosts", open it with notepad, remove the renchat2 or something entry, save.
