I've had times where I could have bought the nice big fancy ps3 systems for a few bucks off and make any average joe jealous, but I waited 1 year, yes 1 year without using the meijers credit card so I could get 10 percent off something big, so I waited until the bgigest dang ps3 sale happened.

Last night 12:01am which was really today tuesday.....anyways I sat in line from 10:30pm monday until 12:01 tuesday, about 1 and a half hours, to get 50 dollars off a 40gig ps3, they had 2 systems, and I was first in line, I waited and eyed everyone coming into the electronics deparment. Finally 12:01am came and I got my ps3, I got a secodn controller, and I got call of duty 4, but wait Frost, this all cost like 510 dollars plus tax, heck no it dont, frost used his 10% off meijers credit card discount, his family 10% off discount, and his 50$ off coupon and frost paid 393$ after tax for a SYSTEM, GAME, CONTROLLER, all for less than the cost of a system

Just thought I'd share what my year's patience went for.

So tonight....OMG PS3 FTW GONNA POST ON IT ROFLSLMAOPS3FTW.

XBOX > PS3

For the value anyways.

I just cannot believe they purposely marketed a console for such a high price in the middle of a three way marketshare battle.

I doubt Sony will ever recover and reclaim the crown.

The whole thing really is a coup for Mr. Gates.

Sony have qualified engineers working on the PS3, That's why it hardly overheats.

As for the Wii, Nintendo are automatic win.

Sorry guys. Here's how it is. Wii sucks. Period. There have been a few good games I've played which are Zelda and Metroid Prime. All the other games are for little kids. PS3 has the most amazing graphics I've ever seen in my entire life. Period. Xbox 360 also has amazing graphics, yet not as amazing as the PS3. Also, it is a whole lot cheaper and has better games. Therefore, The Xbox 360 is the greatest of them all.

I came away impressed with the Wii. Nintendo looks to be very successful in broadening its audience, as it is already doing with the Nintendo DS.

Nintendo made the right decision to leave the 'gaming' to Microsoft and Sony, because there are other markets to pursue.

You seriously dont know math do you, it should be

Wii greater than or equal to xbox greater than or equal to ps3

But my arranment would be different, I'd say wii+ps3 are better than the 360, 360 is good for high def gaming at 350$ but I think the 360 now having a elite model for 415 and the ps3 having a 40gig for 400, it is competitive, there was a line where I was at, and I was first, all the ps3's no matter what model sold out.

HOWEVER I also own a Wii, and however there are Nintendo Fanboys I can't be both because if I was a Nintendo Fanboy, I wouldn't own a 360.

Quote:Wii greater than or equal to xbox greater than or equal to ps3

Ok... but that isn't what I said.

I said the value of awesome the Wii has is equal the value of awesome of the 360. Since they are equal in number, that number is greater than the value of Awesome of the PS3.

It is TWO equations in one. One is an inequality.

Lets say that the value of awesome for the 360 is, for the sake of argument, a 5. Wii = Xbox360 would mean Wii = 5, or 5 = 5, correct?

Well now that 5 is greater (>) than the PS3, which we will say is a 2.5, for the sake of argument.

So $5 = 5 > 2.5$

Or $5 = 5, 5 > 2.5$

Get it?

Because they concentrate too much on having a Universal Entertainment System rather than a gaming console. They have so much stuff that you don't need on a Video game console that they have anyway. (Hence those images for PS3Grill)

I mean, sure, such a product that gives you so many abilities is a good thing... HOWEVER we are not talking about the product that can give you the most... we are talking about Video Gaming Consoles.

Tell me, why does a video game console need a bluray disk drive? A disk drive that supports disks that are so high above standards that they won't be massively used until 2010 :)

Now, Sony makes a good ~entertainment hub system~ however, when it comes to the gaming portion of it, however it is geared towards that, tends to fall short of the other consoles. The only real reason that when I hear PS3 that makes me think about getting it, is the graphics... but honestly, I don't buy things because of graphics.

Also, the thing you quoted, I said they make the "Worst" gaming consoles. I didn't say they make bad gaming consoles. Worst of the 3, not bad.

Now let me move onto the 360 before you reply to me with "The 360 has media abilities too"

The 360 may have these abilities too, but it makes up for it in it's gaming portion. LIVE is an example of this.

The 360 may have these abilities too, but it makes up for it in it's gaming portion. LIVE is an example of this.

But that's the thing, I bought a PS2 because it could play DVD's, CD's, and games, all in the comfort of my bedroom.

Blueray disks are for people who have High-Def tv's, And want full picture quality.

You get free Internet usage with the PS3, Unlike Microsoft, were they need to rob you of every last penny you have.

I'm not a fanboy here myself, I've been buying Nintendo products for 12+ years now, I've owned a Gameboy, a Snes, a Gamecube, and loved every last second of it, Then again, I've owned a PS1 and a PS2.

Having a universal media product isn't a bad thing, I mean, All that in something so small? I'd like to see anyone else pull that out of their ass, And it has some power.

As for "graphics", What makes "OMFG 1337 GRAFIXX" possible? A nice processor and ram, along side with a good graphics card, I've seen some game dev. interviews, and they're taking full advantage of the power behind the PS3, Advanced (And I mean advanced) AI, Real-time Physics (Pretty much like Crysis', even better if you ask me.) and whatnot, Graphics just come as a extra.

I'm getting sick of people saying "WAHH WAHH SONY ARE GAY WAHH WAHH", Because half of the time, people have no idea what business they do, and what customer they provide a service for.

Now let me move onto UT3, Did you know you can download custom mods for UT3, and play them on your console, as well as your pc?

I believe they're doing this with the Xbox, too, But uhh, Don't you have to pay to download extra content for a game, If you own a Xbox?, As far as I'm concerned, Sony aren't charging for such a service.

I'd love to argue all day about what console is better, But to be honest, The Wii and the PS3 are my choice, PS3 for the media, and a Wii for the old skool' times () and innovation.

I'd buy a Xbox... In 2+ years.. After they manufacture a bunch of them and they are tested so they don't overheat and RROD after playing for 1+ hour, And maybe if the Live usage is free, too.

In the end, it comes down to personal choice.

You didn't get my point.

I clearly stated something so you wouldn't use it as your main point of argument, but you did it anyway.

This:

To clarify that last quote: Just because something is the "worst" of something, doesn't necessarily mean it is a bad thing.

For example, there are 3 Plasma Screen TVs. Each have the exact same functions and features. Except each is of its own size. The largest TV would be considered the Best, correct? And the smallest would be the worst.

They are all good things to have and they all accomplish the same task, except the small one is just the worst of the 3. Get what I mean?

An xbox6- now cost 350 for the lower model with a HDD (meaning premium is lower, elite is higher) it's got 20 gig of HDD space, for 50 dollars more, you get built in wifi, and 20 gigs more.

Buying a xbox360 wifi adapter isnt cheap, so really in the end, you get the same stuff, but already included in the system.

A phone is meant to call people, a game system is meant to play games, both xbox360 and ps3 have video playback, music playback, and picture slideshow (does xbox have this, i forget). Both have similar features that many people dont use or need, another example is the wireless remotes, I sit 3 feet away from my little lcd tv, I use my ps3 like a gaming PC, standing up with a lcd by it. Why do i need wireless remotes when I'm sitting 3 feet away from my TV.

Really if you look at it, theres tons of crap we dont need to use just to play games. But really can you say the ps3/wii/360 suck when all 3 systems have similar games and some only on each system? It really depends on what type of games you like, if your into online gaming, a ps3/360 will do you, but if your more into adventure and single player games then go for wii, it's multiplayer is good, but not as good as the ps3's/360's.

Yes I can say that a console is better because can you play Wii Sports on a PS3? Can you play Halo 3 on a Wii? Can you play MGS on a 360?

3rd party games don't count when deciding what you like a console for.
