No one is going to join your forum, because in the short while I have been here, two other hopeless romantics tried to make their own forums, and have failed.

Why would I want to go sign up for your forums, when I'm already on the official forum for the game, packed with people who actually have some knowledge, and have been a part of the game since 02/03?

It's amusing how people come up with their own copy of Renegade Forums every month or so, and surprise surprise, they all fail miserably. If you want to run a forum you have to have something UNIQUE to draw people there, just copying an existing forum and then asking people to join yours instead will not work.

Also your forum sections are inconsistently capitalised and quite a few do not use correct grammar and spelling which causes it to look unprofessional and half-assed. Plus you didn't even pay for a decent webhost, and the skin bears no resemblance to anything related to Renegade.
